Foreword

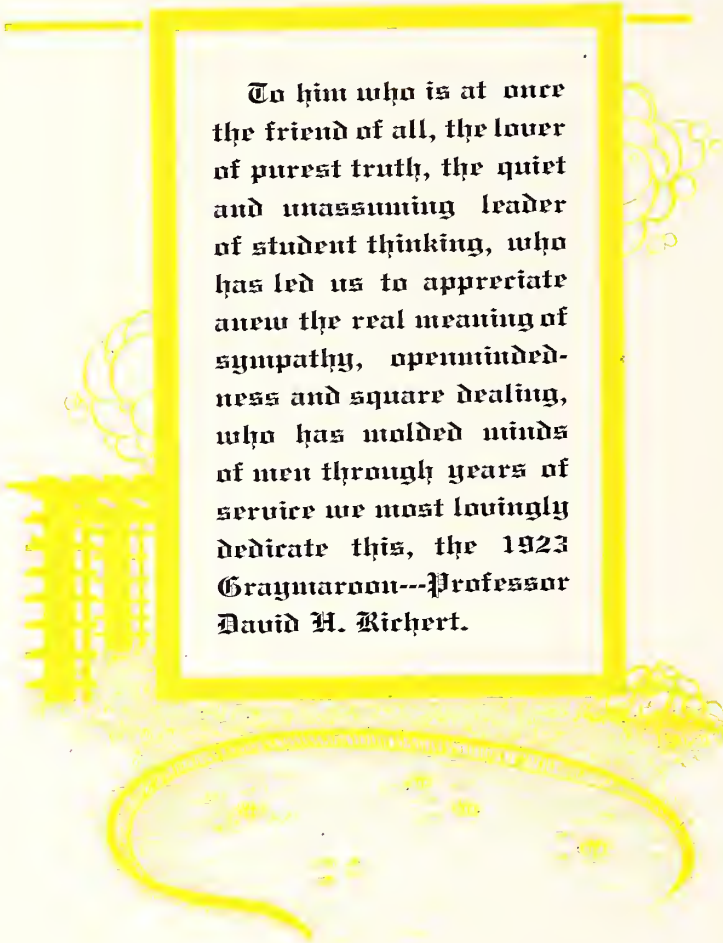

If, when eyes grow dim, and faculties begin to fail us; when the eager hopes and ambitions of youth have changed to grim realities; if, then, this book shall recall to memory happy days spent at Bethel and friendships becomesweet through passing years, then the object of its editors shall have been most happily accomplished.

Dedication

To him who is at once
the friend of all, the lover
of purest truth, the quiet and unassuming leader of student thinking, who has led us to appreciate anew the real meaning of sympathy, openminded-
ness and square dealing,
who has molded minds
of men through years of service we most lovingly
dedicate this, the 1923
Grammaroon---Professor
David H. Richert.

CLASSES

The College

Seniors

The Class of 1922

BALZER, ISAAC H. Inman, Kansas

Mr. Balzer has been a member of the faculty of the Inman Rural High School during the past year. He is in charge of the Normal Training. He received his A. B. and his Th. B. degree in the spring of 1922.

BAUMGARTNER, MRS. PAUL G. Newton, Kansas

Among other graduates of Bethel now teaching in Newton's public schools is Mrs. Baumgartner. She lives with the little folk, teaching the fourth grade in the Lincoln school.

BECKER, JOE Meno, Oklahoma

The years of practice which Joe received while at Bethel have stood him in good stead during the past year. He has shown himself exceptionally well fitted to work with high school boys in the line of athletics. He has had remarkably successful seasons both in football and in basketball at Hammon, Oklahoma.

DICK, HANNAH Newton, Kansas

Miss Dick found little difficulty in finding a position after graduating. She has been instructor of English and History at Fall River, Kansas.

DUERKSEN, JACOB A. Claremont, Calif.

Mr. Duerksen is attending school at Pomona college. He is majoring in mathematics, astronomy, and allied subjects.

ENNS, ANNA Newton, Kansas

Miss Enns is now teaching in the Inman Rural high school. Her work is English and Domestic Art. She is one of three Bethelites who are now teaching in that school.

QUIRK, KATHERINE Newton, Kansas

Miss Quirk is instructor of Latin in the Winchester high school, Winchester, Kans.

SCHMIDT, AUGUSTA Goessel, Kansas

Her work called her elsewhere, and Augusta is now in Witmarsum Seminary, Bluffton, Ohio, where she expects to receive her M. A. degree by June. Her work for the future has not been fully decided, but she is hoping to enter the mission fields.

SCHRAG, HENRY J. Freeman, S. D.

Mr. Schrag is also at Bluffton, where he is majoring in such subjects as are required for the D. B. degree. Mr. Schrag always was an intensive worker and is certainly carrying on with a definiteness of purpose which is remarkable.

SUDERMAN, ANN Newton, Kansas

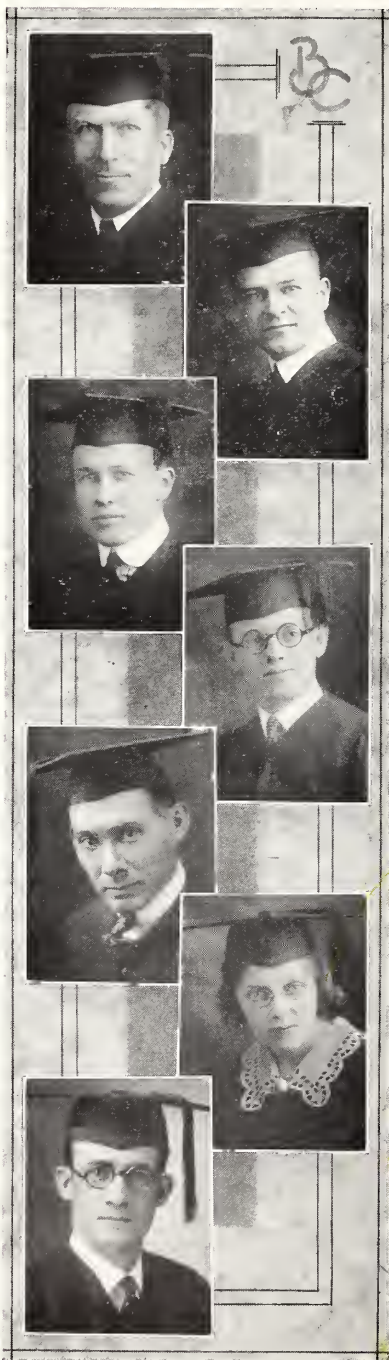

Miss Suderman spent one semester at K. U. after completing her work here, towards her Master's Degree. Unhappy circumstances prevented her remaining there the short time necessary for her to obtain her degree, however. She expects to return next year.

VOTH, ALBERT C. Newton, Kansas

Mr. Voth is temporarily "at home," claiming that "they also serve who only stand and wait." Mr. Voth showed himself a thoroughly capable man, and they who know him, are looking to his career with real interest.

The Class of 1923

"The conditions of conquest are always the same, whether it be in getting an education or out in actual life. Simms says, 'We have but to toil awhile, endure awhile, believe always, and never turn back.'"
 —Lena Waltner.

"What we are is God's gift to us; what we make of ourselves is our gift to God.' Should we then not as students and alumnae accept from our Alma Mater all that which will help our lives to be a more beautiful gift to God?"
 —Anna Belle Dyck.

"'Vita sine litteris mors est.' Life without learning is death."
 —Henry Hege.

"'Live as you will wish you might have lived.'"
 —Herman Becker.

"'Be such a man, and live such a life, that if every man were such as you, and every life a life like yours, this earth would be God's Paradise.'"
 —William J. Becker.

"Careful and thorough intellectual culture under a constant pressure of conscience and duty—This is the only way to a complete manhood and this only, is complete education."
 —David S. Pankratz.

"To serve unselfishly the crown of creation—humanity—is the highest calling in life. It is following in the footsteps of Him who came to minister, not to be ministered unto."
 —Abraham Albrecht.

"God has not given us the power to solve all problems, or wisdom to direct all the wanderings of our fellow men; but through God's gift of spirituality we may enlarge and enlighten the lives we touch."
 —Marie Stucky.

"It has been said, 'Let us watch our beginnings, and results will manage themselves.' Surely, time spent in Bethel's atmosphere makes for a good beginning."
 —Adolf Krehbiel.

"'Learning is a social process controlled by the interchange of mind. The end crowns the work, but without inspiration of God, no man was ever noble, for God is the helmsman of life.'"
 —Philip A. Wedel.

"A sacred burden is this life ye bear; look on it; bear it solemnly; fail not for sorrow; falter not for sin; but onward, upward, till the goal ye win."
 —Herbert Dester.

"Nothing has such power to broaden the mind as the ability to investigate systematically and truly all that comes under thy observation, in life."
 —Paul Haurly.

"He most lives, who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best. Life's but a means to an end; that end, beginning, mean, and end to all things,—God."
 —Herman F. Janzen.

"Thanks be to you, dear Alma Mater, for wholesome guidance, searching thought, and fearless courage."
 —Paul Baumgartner.

"We stand for truth and right,
For wisdom's holy light,
For all that's pure and bright,
And lovely, too."

You can always tell—

Harold Goerz	By his new and novel ideas.
Jessie Stovall	By her "long shortness."
Clarence Schmidt	By his gait.
Neva E. Dunkleberger	By her musical talent.
Menno Schmutz	By his stroll down the "Pike."
Augusta Balzer	By her kindness.
Jake Duerksen	By his quiet demeanor.
Anna Staufer	By her smile.
Aben Johnson	By his athletic tendencies.
Selma Rich	By her oratorical style.
Simon Unruh	By his winning grin.
Edna Krehbiel	By her cheerfulness.
C. J. Epp	By his rolling "R's."
Kathryn Wiebe	By her scream.
William Unruh	By his singing in chapel.

NOT ALWAYS

It was not always thus! Time has wrought many changes. Only three years ago, O gentle reader, this class, The Class of 1924, looked far different. We were twenty-eight then,—twenty-eight sound, healthy, red blooded boys and girls. There was life in us then, (different life, to be sure, but life nevertheless) and while we made many errors in judgment the social world of a college campus accepted our ways with a shrug of the shoulders which could mean nothing else than, "Oh, well they'll have their way anyway."

It could not always be thus! One cannot always tell,—not even of such as we were then,—just what time will bring. The class that so loftily began its Freshman year at school, which so haughtily poked its nose into anything and everything, which so freely and generously aired its opinions,—has changed. Today fourteen, solid, matured, straight thinking men and women come and go about Bethel's halls, doing their best to forget what they used to be like. Often as they come and go, the casual "listener in" may hear them chuckle as they repeat in soft and murmuring accents the dirge of the upper classmen, "The Freshman knoweth not, and he knoweth not that he knoweth not. The Sophomore knoweth not, and he knoweth that he knoweth not. The Junior knoweth and he knoweth not that he knoweth," and then in a far-away sigh "The Senior knoweth and he knoweth that he knoweth."

So passed the first three years. They brought with them many valuable lessons. Many of our number have dropped (und scheiden tut weh) but what we have lost in number we have increased in the quality of our work, and best of all we have learned that education does not manifest itself in being able to tell people all one knows, nor yet in the ability to hide one's ignorance, but in saying the right thing at the right time.

SYNOPSIS

Like the prophet of old, so David, together with "Teon," our Class Sponsor, very diligently though perhaps humbly, guided us through devious paths of joy and sorrow, throughout the years 20-21. A small group were we,—twenty, all told, generally reputed to be rather "classy" and all the other things, good and bad, which are most commonly hurled at unsuspecting freshmen. Those of us endowed with specific talents for studying were dubbed "book worms," the masters of English lessons were accused of being plagiarists; all were advertised far and wide as "Wise Fools." True to the real metal within us, however, we ignored all free advertising and devoted ourselves to the real work.

So that year passed. As sophomores, the next fall, we failed to see many of our number return. David was no longer with us as president of the class. Others, more agriculturally inclined had been persuaded of the benefits of the soil.

However, according to the law of averages, these few were replaced by others who, joining us from other schools, swelled our number to twenty again. We had entered upon a new period of expanding life—a sort of renaissance. We broke the limitations which school life places upon its freshmen like shackles, winning honors in all school activities with the best of them.

So when the year ended, the class was thoroughly organized. Every member had been inoculated with the spirit of the class, and all returned to start the new year right in the following fall. There was more pep than ever, and the class has been one of the leaders in all group contests like the Activity Ticket Campaign, the Graymaroon Campaign, and the Annual Clean Up Day. There's a reason.

Now then,—it's one more year to go,—and we are going to be right there, step for step, right when the whistle blows, to do a good thing for the old school which has harbored us to this day. Here's to the Brown and Buff!

Motto: Perseverance is the price of success

Novalis Thierstein—Some day I'll withdraw my boyish pranks and be a man.
 Gertrude Jantzen—Thoughtful, and refined; always modest, sweet, and kind.
 Alvin Voth—He is just like other boys,—he studies "at times."
 Pearl Voth—Her eyes will some day win for her a happy home.
 Henry Harder—He joined our class the second semester; he's O. K.
 Lamont Smith—Some winds never cease blowing.
 Helen Unrau—The world is short, and so am I.
 Otto Deckert—The class basketball shark, but his lessons,—(?)
 Marie Wedel—She has talent for singing, and is a happy little lass.
 Katherine Goertzen—Nothing is troublesome which is done willingly.
 Herman S. Jantzen—There is nothing so kindly and royal as kindness and truth.
 Elma Kaufman—A smile for everyone, and a frown for no one.
 Martha Berger—She paddles her own canoe.
 Alvin Schmidt—Our class basketball captain; success to him.
 Hulda Pankratz—Her neatness cannot be excelled.
 Nathan Reiff—A good sport, indeed.
 Martha Unruh—Whole hearted and jolly.
 Jacob Banman—If he can tease, he is happy.
 Sadie Ratzlaff—Lessons don't worry her; good grades are easily obtained.
 Luella Smith—A winning way, attractive grace, and talents fit for any place.
 Henry Harms—"Hank" is a jovial, old chap.
 Anna Duerksen—Oh, that sparkler on her finger.
 Theodore Epp—Seeing him in the front row is getting monotonous.
 William Harms—Willing to do his part.
 Dave Ratzlaff—"Let's put some more pep into this."

WHY IS IT ANYWAY?

That Raymond Miller finds no one to ride with him in his Ford; that Edward Hirschler should starve for want of fresh air at night; that Hilda Enns should wonder if boys appreciate music? Why is it,—and we ask this question without apologies,—Why is it that everyone watches Sarah Frieda Regier? How can it be that Henry Boese is so popular? Why should Helen Graber want more books, and ever more knowledge? Verily, these are momentous questions. Or why is it that no one can tell Henry Harder what matches are used for in catching snipes; why can't they tell Dan Janzen how it is below; why can't someone point out the evening star to Regina Kliewer? Who was it anyway who turned over Milton's bed last night; who caused Sam to miss the 10:30 car? Will science ever answer these mysterious questions? If Alvin Woelk had more letters, if Helen Warkentin knew what that was she thought of last, if Dave Ratzlaff could support his proposition in argumentation, if Marie Schmidt had a fluent speaking tongue, if Paul Kliewer could always have his own way about things, and Waldo Wedel could always find the right word; if Florence Reusser could really find a helping hand, and Thelma Francis could believe that somewhere, somehow, sometime she would find a cure for can'ts,—do you suppose they would really be happy? Such are the questions which surge through the hearts of us Academy Freshmen. We are looking for the truth, and we shall not think that we have found it until in some small measure at least we have found the answers to these questions.

ORGANIZATIONS

The Activities

Ask a freshman why he came to college, and he will invariably reply, in substance, "To fit myself for complete living." College days do constitute a period of preparation, but the student must not overlook the fact that he is facing life itself here just as surely as he must when college days are over. We have here, perhaps, a more ideal community life; but do not many of the same problems and situations confront the student as come to men everywhere? He must make the same adjustments to his social group; the rules of the game involve the same principles as in actual life. The exercise of temperance, with the application of common-sense, hard work, and sincere effort are just as necessary to success here as elsewhere.

Every college has activities outside the class-room which give the student opportunities and rewards for which nothing in the curriculum can be substituted, since they furnish occasion for practical expression and exercise of the talents and abilities he may possess. In the regular school routine he is mostly gathering and receiving impressions; here is his chance for expression in practical, constructive effort.

Someone has referred to America as "a nation of joiners." The college freshman is beset on every side with urgent requests "to join" this society, and that organization. But he cannot do justice to all; hence, he must choose and sometimes say "No." Time, health, ability, and interest will help to decide to how many, and to what organizations he may belong. If he is absolutely devoid of musical ability, it would be a waste of time to become a member of a Glee club or orchestra; if, on the other hand, he is planning to spend his life in the mission field he will get much helpful information by being a member of the Student Volunteer Band. To render the greatest service, we need the most complete development of all our capacities, consequently, a variety of interests should be represented in our selection.

A college graduate in reviewing his four years would find it well nigh impossible to name all the advantages he realized through student organizations. The following, however, seem to be outstanding.

There are always members of society who find themselves unable to make the proper use of their leisure hours. If a student has the tendency to spend time loafing, smoking, gambling, or attending cheap movies, interest in a few school activities may keep him out of mischief, and thus help him to steady his conduct while he is building character that will overcome these weaknesses.

Singing in the chorus on the interpretation of a great oratorio, or working with others to make the literary society a success,—such group activities are worth while for the companionship alone.

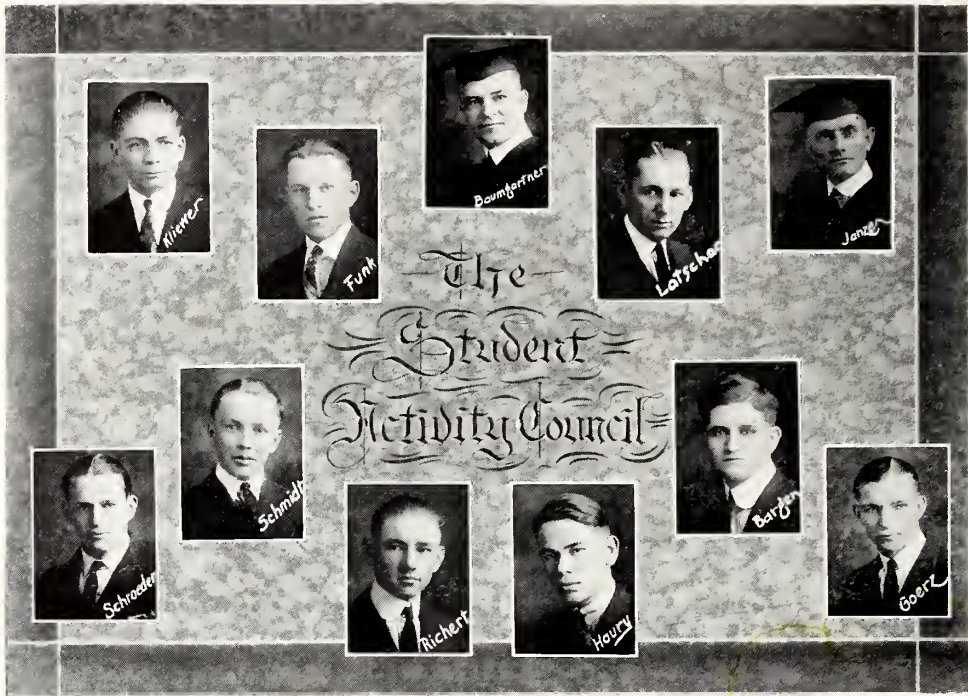

To live a useful and happy life, every man must learn the lesson of co-operation. Most of the great enterprises of our day are dependent upon the united effort and intelligence of many men, and not of single individuals. Ability to work with others to a common end, willingness to recognize the other man's opinion, and the disposition to give and take, are of untold value. Nowhere can these traits be more readily cultivated than in the team work of an athletic contest, in a debate, or in the sessions of a body like the Student Activity Council, where the individual is bound to subordinate his wishes to the welfare of the group.

The world today has great need of men of initiative, more men trained in the art of leadership, men who are willing and capable of accepting responsibility in the conduct of affairs. That individual who can organize and set other people to work harmoniously is always at an advantage. This involves insight into character, judgment, and the keenness to see what needs to be done. The student organizations offer experience which makes for the development of such qualities.

Then there is the pride in accomplishment,—the joy of victory! What are a few hours of credit, or what is money, when compared with the satisfaction resulting from the conviction that one has given one's best? The knowledge that through your efforts the school paper improved, a lifeless literary society was rejuvenated, the college annual was the best published in the history of your alma mater are great enough rewards in themselves.

Whatever organizations the student chooses to enter, he should choose to contribute rather than to receive. He will be either a help or a hindrance. The one who grasps his opportunities and proves himself an active force in the student world will be fitted for the highest type of citizenship.

The Student Activity Council is a thoroughly democratic organization, composed entirely of students, elected by the students themselves for the express purpose of conducting in an efficient manner the financial phase of such student activities which are not already managed by some specific organization. Under its jurisdiction come, for instance, inter-collegiate debate, athletics, editorship of the student section of the Bethel College Monthly, editorship of the Bethel Collegian, and the editorship of the Graymaroon.

The Council is composed of eleven representatives,—six from the collegiate and five from the academy department. During the year 1922-23 the members of the Council were all men, something unusual.

While the Council has done little which is spectacular it has done much to systematize the methods of conducting its business, and has kept uppermost always the idea that college activities can and must be conducted on sound business principles. When there has been an opportunity for applying such methods as have been found good and economical in business at large, they have been adopted with most gratifying results.

Motto:

"Once a Delphian—Always a Delphian"

A student group in a small college inevitably forms a community of its own, which, in its essential parts, is little different from society in general. It is in the organization of such a community that the outside activities play a most important part. The Delphian Literary Society is one of these. It plays but one role: To assist students to find themselves in school, and later in life, especially in public life.

The Delphians look back upon a prosperous year,—a prosperity measured not only by the number of members, but by the quality of work which was rendered, and the service which it has been to many students in its own, distinct way. The work assigned the individual members has been most faithfully and cheerfully done. The original programs, as planned by the committee, have been entertaining and instructive. May this year's enthusiasm be carried forward in the years to come.

"To leave a mark but not a stain."

In 1912 a group of college women, feeling the need of an organization that would develop their literary talents, organized the Alpha Beta Literary Society.

Nine years it served its purpose, and then reorganization in 1921 made the society one for both college men and college women. The old constitution was revised, limiting the membership of the society to forty.

The purpose of the Alpha Beta Literary Society expressed in the preamble of its constitution, that "The object of this society shall be the cultivation of literary interests, social freedom, and administrative ability," has been found worthy of the most hearty support of many students. The society had its full quota of members. It has done excellent work. Musical, educational, and health programs have been rendered. At times physicians, or Newton's business men, or members of the Faculty have brought diverse and practical messages.

The literary work of the society has been continued in the same spirit in which it was begun last year. Bi-weekly programs treat of such subjects as "psychology," "drama," educational institutions of America and Europe, and "European student conditions of today."

The Excelsior Literary Society

The Excelsior Literary Society is one of the active organizations of the Academy. It was organized in the spring of 1922. When school opened in the fall its soliciting committee had the work of soliciting new members well in hand.

The purpose of such an organization is to create and to further more general interest in literary work; to cultivate a desire for better reading, better delivery of essays or music, or the art of public speaking and debate; to cultivate social graces.

Meetings are held weekly, and consist of interestingly instructive programs of varying nature, topic programs as well as miscellaneous being represented. Joint meetings with its sister society, The Athenians, are not unfrequent, and certainly helpful. The joint efforts of these two organizations has resulted in some exceptionally fine public programs.

Its social side is not neglected, but finds its proper emphasis in outings and social gatherings, making for an all around development. May the society prosper and remain true to its highest ideals as expressed by its name, "Excelsior, ever upward!"

The Athenian Literary Society

The Athenian Literary Society is an Academy organization. Last year it was changed from an exclusive men's society to a mixed society admitting both boys and girls.

Its aim is to assist its members in developing the art of public speaking, reading, essay writing, and music; to prepare them for public life; and to further a more wholesome social atmosphere among the boys and girls. The meetings of the society are held weekly at which time varied programs, consisting of musical numbers, readings, debates and parliamentary drills have been given. The interest shown in the programs this year speaks well for the organization. True to its name the society is ever striving for knowledge.

Intercollegiate Debate

Bethel believes that forensic activities in a school should be given a major place in the interests of student life. For that reason a constantly increasing emphasis is being placed on all activities of that nature. At Bethel there is a growing recognition of the importance of one particular phase of forensic activities, and that is debate. Practical debating, it is believed, aside from the purely cultural value which it offers, is one of the best forms of training known for the purpose of developing convincing thought and pleasing, well balanced personality.

For a number of years Bethel has been a member of the Kansas Intercollegiate Debating League. This League is composed of the accredited colleges of Bethany, Kansas Wesleyan, McPherson, Sterling, Bethel, Fairmount, Friends and Southwestern. The first four schools named constitute the Northern Division; the last four, the Southern. Bethel meets only those schools which are in her division unless she defeats all of them, in which case she must meet the winning school in the other division. No one of these schools is so strong as to discourage any of the others that may be weaker, and for that reason there is much exciting and wholesome competition.

For the year 1921-22 the Bethel debaters made a record of which Bethel may well be proud. They won approximately fifty per cent of their debates. This result can be appreciated more when it is remembered that each of the opposing schools has a college department from two to four times as large as that of Bethel.

The debaters for 1922-23 were less successful in winning judges than those of the previous year. They ranked high, however, in constructive argument and lost by small margins only. Considering the fact that all were Freshmen, the speakers did very admirable work.

The Pentangular Debating League

Bethel College Academy had her first debate with a sister Academy in the year 1910-11. There was but one team of two speakers and it was unquestionably defeated by the Sterling Academy team by a decision of 3 : 0. In spite of that fact, since that time interest in inter-academic debates has constantly grown, and a few years ago the Pentangular Debating League was organized. This League is composed of the Academies of McPherson, Central, Bethany, Tabor, and Bethel. Each school meets each other school at least once in the year with one team. Last year, 1921-22, the Bethel teams began work very late but even then made a fair record. This year, 1922-23, the teams did exceptionally well. They won eight judges out of a possible twelve and thereby took first place in the ranking of the five academies of the League.

Closely associated with the athletic activities of a school like Bethel is the work of a letter club. Bethel's Letter Club was organized originally in 1920, and has since added new members from time to time. When school opened in 1922 fourteen of the last year's members reported at the first meeting of this organization. It was at this time that a reorganization was deemed necessary.

A committee, appointed to prepare a new constitution, submitted one which included strict regulations regarding the wearing of "B's", and the number of stripes which any individual may wear. Moreover, in the past letters had been awarded to debaters and orators, while the new constitution awards them only to athletes.

One committee provides for the needs of visiting teams and sees that such men are made to feel at home on our campus. A social committee arranges for social occasions, such as the annual banquet, at which time all new members are welcomed, and the captain for the next year's team elected.

It is an organization which attempts to cultivate a spirit of better sportsmanship among athletes. It has succeeded in establishing a more or less permanent link of understanding between former members and present members of the Letter Club. Its activities at Bethel and its relations with other schools have engendered a fine spirit of friendship. No one hesitates to give this organization proper recognition for its services.

IN BLACK AND WHITE

Until January 8th, 1918, Bethel students had no adequate means of formal expression. But with that date was begun the publication of a student paper, an enterprise which has ever since been a part of our college life. At that time Professor E. E. Leisy, then the Head of the English Department, made arrangements with the Kansan Printing Company, whereby a page in the Tuesday issue of the Kansan might be devoted to a college paper. Under these conditions the Bethel paper has ever since appeared.

Despite Faculty advice to the contrary, the students chose to name their paper "The Breeze." More dignified titles were suggested, but no, the "Breeze" it was to be, blowing its gentle zephyrs out to all with whom it might come in contact.

Nelson W. Krehbiel was its first editor. He, working with an enthusiastic staff, and a helpful Faculty, made the paper tremendously popular. It had made a propitious start, when through the resignation of Mr. Krehbiel, the editor's position passed to Mr. Alfred Linscheid, who concluded the year's work in a commendable manner. Three young ladies held forth as editors the three succeeding years,—Wanda Isaac, Alice Martin, and Dora Kliever.

But somehow the sentiment concerning the name of this publication seemed to ferment, until it became so pronounced that a change in the name seemed imperative. On October 6th, 1921, the first Collegian appeared. The Breeze had run its course. The little paper which had begun in 1918 as a half page edition, now required a full page.

And the Collegian is still growing. Today one hundred twenty-five copies leave the campus weekly to ex-students and friends. The Collegian answers the students' need for a means of self-expression; it is a school in itself, providing embryo journalists with a tremendous amount of practical experience, and at the same time furnishing well written college news to such as may be interested.

A college paper boosts. To this rule the Collegian has been no exception. It has taken a positive stand toward that which was thought to be good and wholesome for the school; it has been free to express disapproval whenever it was thought necessary. To truthfully mirror the events which make up a school year at Bethel has been the aim, and incidentally the reputation of the Collegian. How perfect this picture has been is a reader's decision. Yet this fact remains, that Bethel without her Collegian would be a quite different Bethel; like the loss of a very close friend and admirer.

In the early spring of 1911 the students of Bethel College founded an organization named the "Christian Student Union of Bethel College."

The purpose of the women's auxiliary of this organization was to train girls for more effective Christian leadership. The C. S. U. realized the value of widening its scope of work and in 1915 plans were formed for the affiliation with the National Young Women's Christian Association. In that year the girls started a loan system to pay expenses of delegates to conferences.

The local work of the Y. W. C. A. consists of religious and social activities. The girls meet Wednesday mornings for a short program conducted either by students or outside speakers.

With one of our girls thoroughly imbibed with the spirit of the Estes Park Conference, this year's work was begun with zest and enthusiasm. Religious and social activities including the regular Wednesday morning meetings, Bible classes, weekly devotional meetings, the support of a native worker in India, various social affairs, and a bazaar were carried out in a spirit of enthusiasm and good will.

The Blue Triangle is the symbol of the purpose of the Y. W. C. A.: the trinity of a healthy body, a well balanced mind, and an aspiring soul sense that chooses only the true and good.

The Young Men's Christian Association is undoubtedly an indispensable spiritual asset to the student life of Bethel College. As an organization it is affiliated with the State and National Associations, whose aim it is to develop the mind, body, and soul, of which the red triangle is symbolic.

It offers opportunities to its members in creating a desire for a deeper spiritual life and to develop Christian Leadership. As a means to foster and express this, mid-weekly devotional services are conducted. Members of this organization have also the opportunity of coming in touch with some of the best Christian leaders from all parts of the United States, as well as with a number of local men from surrounding communities.

Religious and social problems are studied in voluntary Mission and Bible Classes. Through the work of the community service committee, religious services are held in the county jail, and song service in the Bethel Hospital on Sundays. By an annual fall and spring social the campus service committee aids in providing wholesome entertainments and in this way helps to further the social needs of students.

PURPOSE—"It is my purpose, if God permit, to become a foreign missionary."

MEMBERSHIP—The membership is now twenty-one and is the largest Band in the State of Kansas with perhaps one exception.

WEEKLY MEETINGS—Tuesday evening.

WORK OF THE BAND—The work of the Band has been to study the mission field and its varied needs in order that the members might fit themselves for the work. In this, our missionaries who are home on furlough have been a great blessing.

Another phase of the work has been the deputation work carried on by groups of the Volunteers. This has been in response to invitations sent by the churches in this vicinity, seven programs having been given during the first semester. The Student Volunteer Quartette, which has been called on frequently during the year, is made up of Herman Janzen, William Unruh, Albert Penner and Jacob R. Duerksen.

FORMER VOLUNTEERS—There are at least twenty-five who have gone out as missionaries since the Band started in 1909.

The Music Department

MRS. HARRIET BLATCHLEY
Dean, Music Department

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted."
—Shakespeare.

The Bethel College Music Department has served full many a year, and it has its proper place in the curriculum of this school today, offering, as it does, instruction in pipe organ, piano, voice, violin, theory of music, ensemble singing and playing. The aim of the department is not only to increase the technical knowledge of students, but also to create a more fervent love and appreciation for that which is most beautiful when expressed in music. Certain standards are called for, and ideals, which it maintains, thus spurring students on to put forth their best efforts in a way which is conducive to refined thinking and noble living.

A special Music Department had been established at Bethel as early as 1893-94, offering reed organ, piano, harmony, and singing, which were taught in classes and given free of charge to regular students. A piano lesson was given for eighty-five cents for a period of forty-five minutes. Professor B. F. Welty, the instructor at that time, was greatly handicapped by not having a private studio, and being required to teach all lessons in what is now the chapel.

The year 1895 marked the beginning of a new era, as it were, in this department. A teacher's certificate course was offered in piano. Fifteen students enrolled in this work during that year. In 1900 there were twenty-one; in 1908 there were forty-five; today there are seventy-five. So the department outgrew its first small beginnings, and today the teachers' certificate course is offered both in Piano and Voice.

There was one phase of its work which worked its way into the hearts of almost every student who ever attended this institution,—the Oratorio Society. This society was first formed in 1900 at the time when Professor Welty headed the department, for the purpose of rendering annually a standard oratorio. The entire student group has taken part in its activities as a rule, and aside from the excellent training which always forms a part of such work, they have become familiar with the works of masters. Probably the largest membership of this society was one hundred fifty in the year 1915. Among the oratorios which have been rendered from time to time are: Messiah, St. Paul, Elijah, Creation, Holy City, Seven Last Words of Christ, and Gallia.

Under the direction of Professor A. D. Schmutz, the musical studios were moved from the chapel to Students' Home. In 1918 the piano studio was moved to Elm Cottage, and the Vocal studio into the Dining Hall. In 1922 the Music Hall was built, where the two departments have found a new home.

Not too much credit can be given to Mrs. Harriet Blatchley for her unremitting efforts in the work which she has been doing in the past five years. Under her direction and instruction many a student has come to love music as never before,—the good music which always lifts one above the common place.

Piano Forte

The Piano Department was one of the first to recognize and appreciate the tremendous advantages which the new Music Hall provided, and it lived up to its opportunities in a way which was truly remarkable and encouraging.

Under capable leadership the students of this department in conjunction with the Voice Department rendered several recitals, which spoke most laudably of the benefits which accrue from such work. The music which was studied, was studied with a view of maintaining a high standard of music, and it certainly helped many to appreciate this type of music as never before.

The enrollment in this department was large owing no doubt to the better facilities, but also, we trust, to the growing reputation that Bethel's Music Department serves only with that which really helps to make life a little more worth while.

Voice Department

The people of America are fast becoming aware of the benefits to be derived from voice culture, and the student body of Bethel is no exception. People are getting away from the antiquated idea that voice culture is for the sole and only purpose of producing singers. Aside from the singing phase its spiritual, moral, mental, and general cultural possibilities are astounding.

The greater one's knowledge of tone production, the higher is the brand of musical indulgence sought. It is a fact that good music holds a place in the world that cannot be usurped. God gave it that place. It is His ideal way of disseminating His word. A simple hymn sung by an artist may make more converts than the most elaborate sermon.

Voice culture is, then, not for the single purpose of improving our petty talents. It is rather for the purpose of gaining a thorough knowledge of the requisites of good singing,—a knowledge that will automatically arouse a desire for the best. A national desire for the best will soon do away with trash and bring forth the substantial.

The Men's Glee Club

Bethel has in past years been exceptionally favored with successful male glee clubs, and the club this year certainly emulated its predecessors in this respect. A well balanced singing group, a varied and clean program, and the sincere efforts of the club members all contributed to crown the efforts of this organization with success.

The club made an extensive tour through the states of Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Iowa during the year which has just closed, during the Easter vacation, as in former years.

Club membership was limited to fourteen. To be a member of the Men's Glee Club is one of the outstanding ambitions of many of the men students. In order to become a member a student must first of all have a voice and a workable knowledge of music, but that is not all, for his character and scholarship must be of a nature that will reflect credit both on the organization and the college.

The club has persistently maintained a high standard of music, holding itself aloof from anything which was cheap. It rendered a good, clean program in a good, clean way, and delivered a sacred program which reflected the same careful preparation as did its secular program.

The Ladies' Glee Club has proved itself a factor in promoting the spirit of friendship toward Bethel. A true representation of the school spirit has been the great aim of the club. The director and club members have, indeed, expended much time and energy in the attainment and mastery of some of the best musical selections and a beautiful harmony of voices.

However, not only harmony of voices, but also a beautiful harmony of ideals and aims are absolutely necessary to the success of such an organization.

The activities of this club during the year 1921-22 did not extend beyond the state of Kansas. However, twenty successful concerts were given in the state. During 1922-23 the club rendered approximately fifteen concerts in Oklahoma and in co-operation with the Men's Glee Club many of our churches in this vicinity, and several towns in Kansas were served. No small part of its success is to be ascribed to the Faculty members who accompanied the girls, and who were able to interpret the club to the audiences as well as interpret the audiences to the club.

The Bethel Orchestra and The College Band

Director-----Mr. L. Dean Sands

A good thing always returns, it is said, nor is this saying utterly inapplicable to the Bethel Orchestra, and the College Band, which after a long period of inactivity have been revived with no small measure of success.

Under the direction of Mr. L. Dean Sands from Newton these two groups have been developed into well balanced organizations. The orchestra plays eighteen instruments; the band fifteen. Both the orchestra and the band, have, on occasion, rendered invaluable service here on the campus, and Bethel is proud of both.

In Retrospect

Blown by the sharp autumn air, came the sounds so familiar to the football field. The plunk of the fullback's toe against the pigskin, the sharp staccato voice of the quarterback barking his signals, the stamping of cleated feet, and the calls of the busy coach told the college, and the conference, that Bethel College was again playing football. Not since Coach Schroeder left in 1918 had Bethel had a football team. Her athletic activities had been confined to basketball, track, and tennis.

With the return of Coach Gus Haury, Jr., a graduate of Bethel College and Colorado University, as athletic director, football had a renaissance. A call for volunteers brought out thirty men and to their credit it may be said that not one quit. The squad, composed wholly of new men with no college football experience and only a few with even the high school rudiments of the grid game, presented a problem. Green material had to be worked into shape, hardened by daily training, taught the fundamentals of the game, and imbued with the spirit of team work. It was not an easy task.

As only three games were played it was necessary to go through weeks of grueling practice without a game to keep their interest alive, but in spite of this the team kept up their morale and Bethel at last saw a fighting team trot onto the field against McPherson College. Bethel lost her three games, but she lost them to three of the best teams in the state, and as she was out to learn football instead of winning games she had no regrets. The game at McPherson was lost 39-6, the Baker 114-0, and the Friends game 39-0.

But the team has much for which to be proud. It scored on McPherson, the only team that beat Baker, the state champions. It developed a passing attack that enabled it to complete half the passes made against Baker during the season, and against Friends, as a Wichita paper put it "for a green and inexperienced team the Bethel aggregation made the much lauded Quaker steam roller look like a kiddie kar."

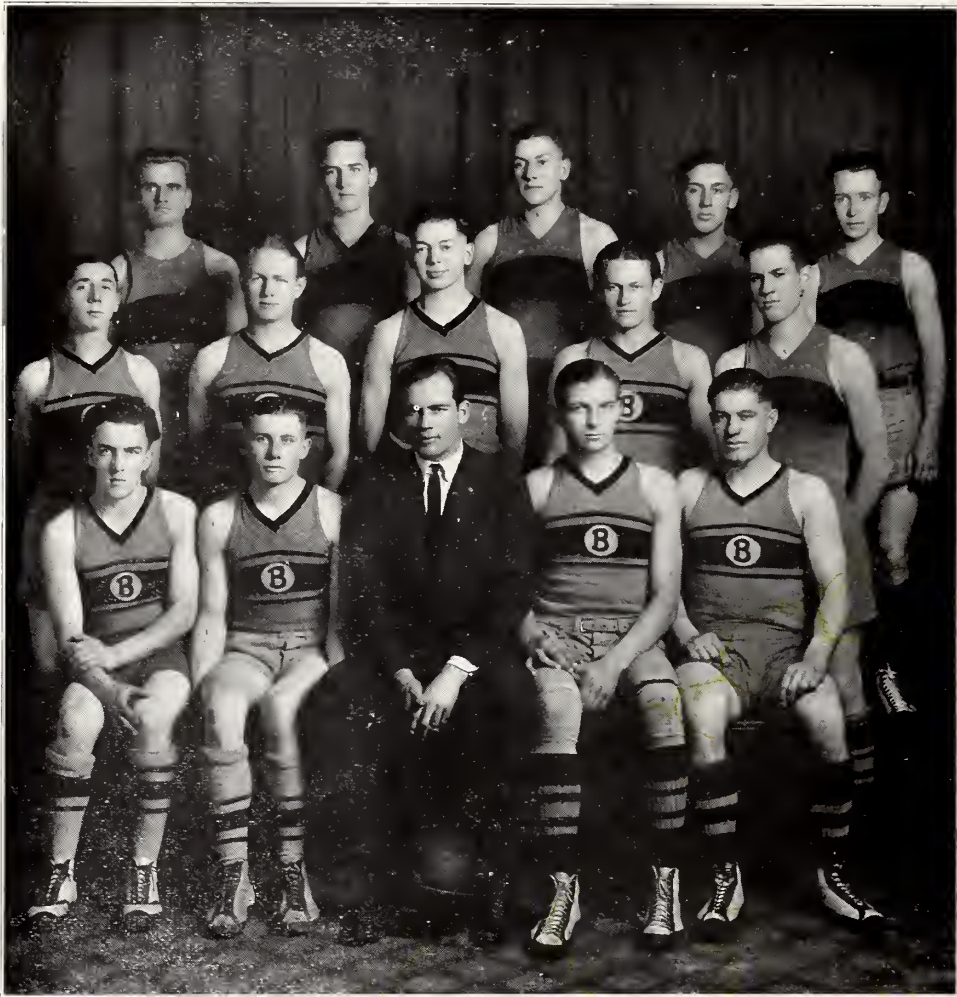

But the team did more than this. It set a precedent of hard working, hard hitting, hard fighting, and clean playing for Bethel College teams in the future to follow and it awakened in the school a school spirit of loyalty which only football can bring.

Coach Haury has the following schedule made for the season '23.

Kansas Wesleyan at Salina, September 28th.
Bethany at Newton, October 20th.
Sterling at Sterling, October 26th.
McPherson at Newton, November 2d.
Friends at Wichita, November 10th.

Rudolph Enns of Newton was captain of the team. Other men who made the team and played in enough periods to win a letter are: Edward H. Schroeder, Albert Ratzlaff, Albert Ewert, Herman "Aaron" Becker, Aben Johnson, Dan Schroeder, Harold Goerz, Harold Johnson, Clarence Schmidt, Oscar Loganbill, Menno Schmutz.

In the Course of a Year

Basket ball, of all the major sports, holds forth as the principal athletic feature of the year at Bethel. As a member of the Kansas Intercollegiate Conference, which boasts of a brand of the indoor court game that annually demands respect at the national tourney of the A. A. U., Bethel is incited to produce her very best. Bethel's traditions require this of her as well, and in addition obtain teams marked for their clean, sportsmanlike conduct of which the 1923 five was no exception.

Bethel opened her season with a decisive win from the Quakers. No flowery promises had been put forth; Coach Haury, experienced as a successful high school coach, was handling his first intercollegiate five; the basketball timber available presented difficulties for organization and it is to Haury's ability at team diagnosis that he later saw fit to make some radical changes which decidedly improved the workings of the team. For instance, Enns was replaced at guard by Mayne and was given a forward's berth. Kansas Wesleyans unexpectedly took the pleasure out of a first victory which a one-sided win from Sterling could not bring back. Without doubt the Graymaroon five displayed its best court game when, in a thrilling contest with the two-time Conference champions it led Southwestern for three quarters and held them to a three point victory.

The interim between the disappointing losses to McPherson was marked by the Graymaroon achievement of a victory in the Quakers' own territory, a hitherto oft-desired but unaccomplished feat, the second win from Friends and a reprisal for the Baker gridiron disaster. Though the two final losses to the Wheatshockers were lamentable there remains a general impression that basket ball at Bethel is improving, an impression greatly substantiated when a critical observation is taken of the inter-class squads developing under Coach Haury's eyes.

Graymaroon

PETER R. LINSCHIED

Captained the Graymaroon squad of 1923 while playing his final season of inter-collegiate basket ball. Pete may be a guard of the old-school type but the consistency of his defense instills confidence in teammates and spectators alike.

RUDOLPH ENNS

In his second year for Bethel displayed the same smooth style of former years, gained under Lindley tutelage. The change from guard to forward was warranted by his regularity at scoring.

HAROLD GOERZ

Played a better game for Bethel than ever before. Ever canny in his method his shots came when least expected.

CLIFFORD MAYNE

Another one of Lindley's railroaders won the favor of all by his unassuming, quiet manner while steadying the Bethel defensive.

WALDO PENNER

Developed speed and footwork to overcome his handicap in size. His accurate eye proved its worth at the free throw line.

RAYMOND KNOSTMAN

Though he got off to a late start, supplied the few inches of additional height so essential in gaining the tip-off at center.

Fourth Annual Pentangular Track Meet

Bethel was host to the 4th Annual Pentangular Track and Field Meet and Tennis Tournament entertaining Bethany, Kansas Wesleyan, McPherson and Sterling colleges here on May 4, 1923. The musical Swedes from Lindsborg took the meet by a fair margin, winning the handsome silver loving cup offered by the Newton Lions Club. McPherson pressed hard on the victor's heels, grabbing 51 points to the latter's 66. The Wesleyans came in with 27½ points while Bethel and Sterling trailed with 8½ and 3 respectively. The cup for the mile relay and the cup for the tennis doubles also went to Bethany. Bethel's precedent in the pentangular of awarding a gold medal to the high point man resulted in the presentation of two such honors since McKeever of Kansas Wesleyan and Skilling of Bethany each scored 13 points; two firsts and a second apiece. Bethel retained the silver trophy for tennis singles when Harold Goerz defeated Gardner of Sterling 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 in the finals.

The track events were run off on Bethel's new quarter mile dirt track which was constructed this spring under the supervision of Coach G. A. Haury, Jr. The track was designed with a 100 yard straight-away and has otherwise been arranged in order to minimize handicaps in the dashes. A 5-alley set of substantial, low and high convertible hurdles completes the track equipment.

Due, very likely, to the excellent condition of the track, despite a heavy rain on the day previous, there was a material reduction in the time on all of the dashes, up to the half mile, in both low and high hurdles, and in the mile relay. The 220 yard dash had 2 seconds lopped off, a second apiece was clipped off the hurdles, while Bethany shortened the mile relay by six seconds.

A Review

Baseball, since the war, has fought its way back into the spring athletic curriculum of most colleges where it will henceforth demand a place on an equal plane with track. Aspirants for the diamond sport failed to gain the support of the general student group in producing a team and maintaining a schedule in the spring of 1922 so a group of men interested in putting the national sport into action here at Bethel organized a baseball association. The season was opened late and the willing but raw material was difficult to whip into shape. But three games were played in each of which the Graymaroons suffered defeat: May 10, 1922, Fairmount, 13-0; May 16, 1922, Fairmount, 12-3; May 26, 1922, Bethany, 17-0.

Of the men who actively supported baseball on the diamond the following were awarded "B's": Paul Latschar (capt.), c; Paul Kaufman, p; Alvin Nickel, ss; Waldo Penner, 1b; Rudy Enns, 2b; Aben Johnson, 3b; Menno Schmutz, lf; Otto Funk, cf; John P. Buller, rf.

With the opening of the 1923 season of baseball this sport has been duly recognized as a necessary constituent of Bethel's spring athletic activities. There are at least seven letter men on hand with no mean amount of additional material as shown by the early reports for work. Three squads have been organized for preliminary practice games. Latschar has been re-elected captain. The schedule is not definite but will probably be the following:

Kansas Wesleyan at Salina, April 20; Chillocco Indians at Bethel, April 25; Bethany at Lindsborg, April 30; Southwestern at Bethel, May 8; Southwestern at Winfield, May 16; Bethany at Bethel, May 22; Kansas Wesleyan at Bethel, May 29.

FEATURES

Newton---The Home of Bethel College

Its People

There are approximately ten thousand of them. They represent a great variety of types. Many of them have lived here a long time and are thoroughly familiar with the traditions of the city. Newton is old enough to have valuable traditions. This was clearly shown through the Fiftieth Anniversary Number of its largest paper last year. When a city has reached the stage where its history is permitted to influence its thinking the time has come for the people of that city to become more closely affiliated in its greater interests and much more appreciative of the good which they can do.

Its Interests

The Economic. Newton is at the center of a large and rich farming community. The principal economic asset within its borders are the Santa Fe Shops, for Newton is one of the main divisions of this great railway system. The pay-roll of the Santa Fe is very heavy. This transportation facility has other economic advantages besides the local pay-roll. It makes Newton a very accessible place from all portions of the country. Newton also has a valuable flour industry, fostered principally by three large mills which are an asset of no small proportions. Another economic feature seems in the ascendency at this time, and that is an oil field, which has been developed slowly but apparently surely. The economic interests of Newton are fostered very materially by an active Chamber of Commerce.

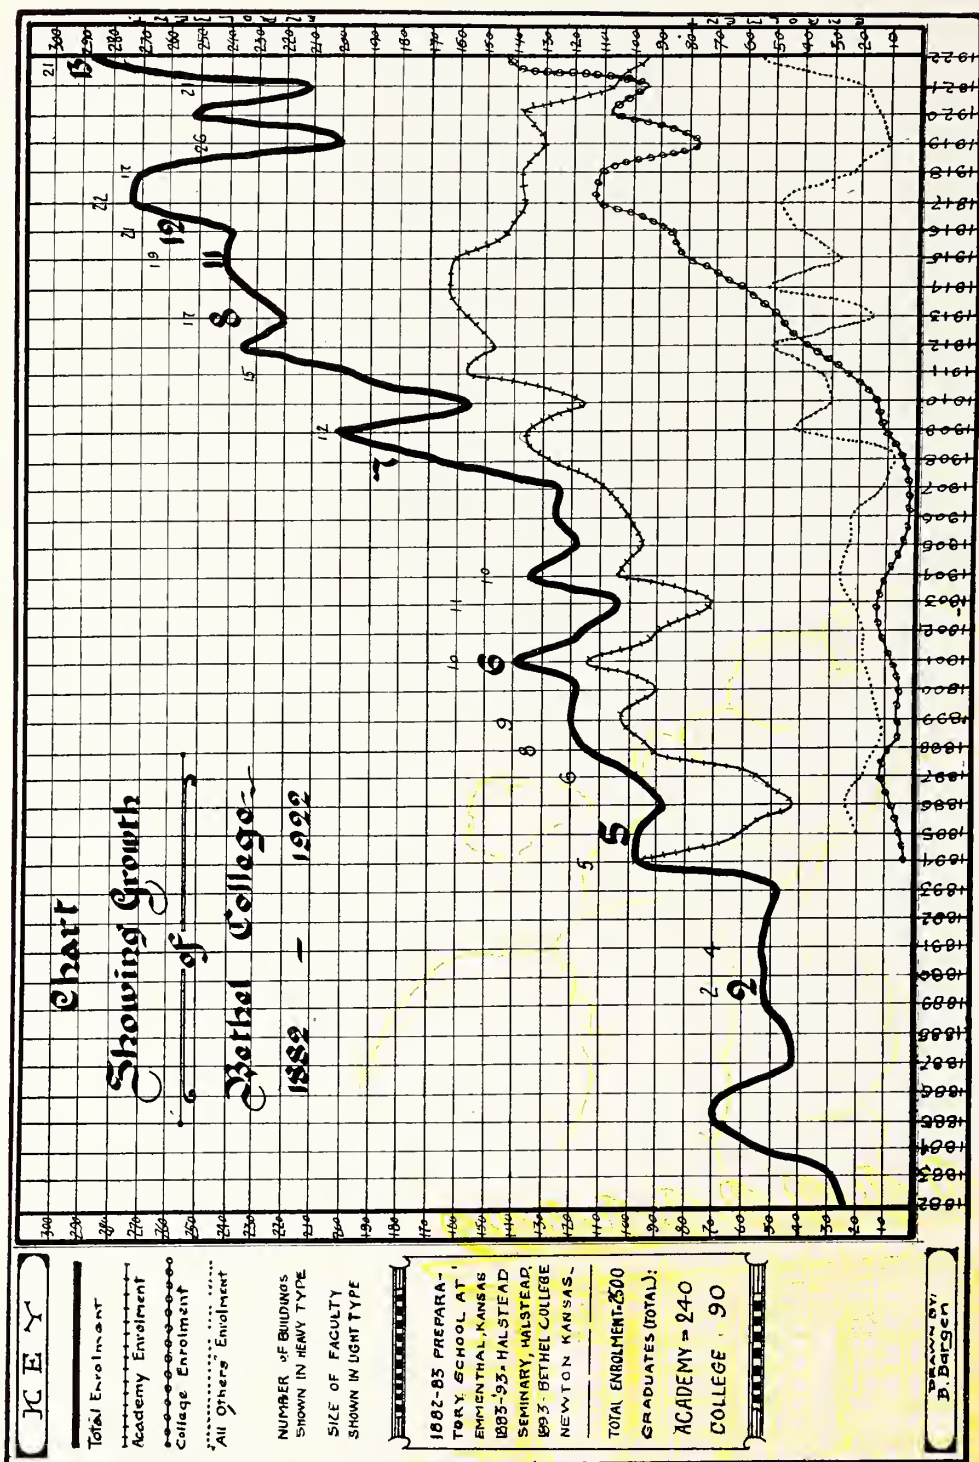

The Social. Newton has a number of clubs which actively further a healthful social atmosphere. The Rotary and Lions Clubs and a number of ladies' organizations furnish opportunity for the social as well as the intellectual welfare of the community. The broader aspects of social needs are met by spacious and well kept parks, a large city auditorium, and by well managed arrangements for the social needs of young and old through the public schools and the Y. M. C. A. The social side is linked up closely with service and welfare through two hospitals of unusual size and efficiency for a city of ten thousand and through an efficient city nurse.

The Intellectual. Newton has six public school buildings with approximately one-fifth of its population of school age and in school. The spirit of the community is such that it is not easy for boys and girls to drop out of school before they have been given a real opportunity educationally. The Newton Business College affords opportunity for specialized training. A city in which the interest in education is good is an ideal home for a college like Bethel, which offers not only unusual facilities in its Academy, but also provides for a full college course under the direction of a strong Faculty. Bethel grants the A. B. and the Th. B. degrees.

The Moral and Spiritual. Newton is a city of many churches whose most active members are public spirited men and women. The Ministerial Alliance and a newly organized Federation of Churches do much to stimulate the moral and spiritual interests of the city and to promote the kind of activity which makes for civic righteousness as well as God-fearing lives. Several churches maintain parochial schools, and a number of them have vacation Bible Schools.

There is also an active and well organized community training school for leaders of all churches. The work of the churches reaches out into the civic life through co-operation with the Y. M. C. A., in furthering a healthful, social, and intellectual, as well as spiritual life.

The 1922 Fund Raising Campaign

Mr. Frank B. Dean
Campaign Manager

Mr. R. L. Hogan
Campaign Chairman

Mr. Bennett Grove
Campaign Treasurer

For several years the Directory and Constituency of Bethel College have felt the ever-increasing demand for more room and especially so in the Science Department. At the close of the school year, 1922, there was anticipated an ever increasing number of students from year to year. These facts again presented themselves anew to the Board, the Community, and the Constituency. The Chamber of Commerce and other organizations of the city of Newton, soon pledged their whole hearted support in an active participation in a financial campaign.

On May 31st, 1922, the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors, Mr. R. A. Goerz, President J. H. Langenwalter, Doctor R. S. Haury, and Mr. J. H. Richert announced a campaign for $210,000 for a program including a new Science Hall, heating plant, perfecting the sanitation system and general improvements for Bethel College.

In order that the work might be more conveniently done, headquarters for the campaign were opened up town in the Rich Mercantile building. Here, as a nucleus of the campaign in Mr. Frank B. Dean, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Mr. J. J. Siemens, Mrs. Eddie Farrar Inman, and a number of stenographers, the educational work was begun. Newspaper publicity through the towns of Harvey and adjoining counties informed the people of the needs of an institution in their midst, and the great advantages that come to the people living in a college community such as ours. During the six weeks of educational work seventy-five thousand pieces of literature were sent out to the people of Newton, the surrounding country, and the constituency of the entire Northwest.

The people of Harvey and adjoining counties were soon well informed in this way of the possibilities that were theirs in the making of a bigger and better Bethel. Communities were organized, not only in the city of Newton, but practically the whole of Harvey county. In short, there was a total committee of three hundred and thirty-one members with Mr. R. L. Hogan of the city of Newton as General Chairman, Mr. Clayton Lehman, as Vice Chairman, and Mr. Bennett Grove as Campaign Treasurer.

On August 7th the opening banquet was held at the Methodist Church at 6:30 p. m., as an inspiration meeting, where the preliminary work was reported. On the same night Dean F. J. Kelly from K. U. spoke on the subject, "The Service Which a College Such as Bethel Can Render the Community." He laid stress upon the need for the smaller college especially the Christian colleges such as Bethel and also gave praise to the students who had come from Bethel to K. U. as being among the finest and best entered.

The real drive was launched on the following day, August 8th, and the subscriptions soon came pouring into headquarters. The thermometer of subscriptions on the corner of Broadway and Main kept rising steadily and before long, when the down-town office was vacated it had reached a standing of $66,000. Among the more outstanding gifts pledged was that of the late Mrs. J. J. Krehbiel who together with her husband was one of the founders and ardent supporters of Bethel.

Since a substantial sum has been raised by this time it marks the beginning of a campaign for Bethel to realize her needs.

The Bethel College Alumni Association

The Graymaroon talks to the Alumni. With every new publication the editorial staff sends out ramifications on school life, illustrated by a wealth of pictures and portraits, a season's events in miniature, which helps the Alumnus to keep apace with his Alma Mater, and procreates in him the desire to come back. Reversing the order for a moment, let the alumni tell students who, what, and why they are.

On the twelfth of June, 1894, the graduates of the Halstead Seminary met at the call of Professor G. A. Haury, Sr., in the latter's home and organized the Alumni Association. Professor Haury was elected the first president, having as subsidiary officers, C. C. Richert, D. F. Jantzen, and G. N. Harms, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer respectively, chosen from the following group of charter members: G. Baergen, J. R. Thierstein, C. Friesen, P. J. Wedel, J. W. Kliever, R. S. Haury, R. A. Goerz, C. C. Richert, Professor G. A. Haury, Sr., G. N. Harms, and D. F. Jantzen.

The organization has met twenty-nine times in twenty-nine successive years, never failing to collect the annual dues, which furnish the wherewithal for the banquet and incidentally give the library fund a substantial aid. The Alumni Association is a force; that is why it never falters. In no other organization are the heartstrings of its members so mutually tied by innumerable experiences and months of hard work; in no other organization is there that crystallization of souls and minds into a determination to stand by the Alma Mater for better or for worse.

The Association is growing larger, in proportion to the yearly increase of students gathering at these halls, and with time and increase in membership is gaining prestige and importance. Father Time has touched the locks of more than one head and added a trace of gray. Men who in their day passed in and out under the venerable arch helping to wear the little hollows into the limestone steps, and immortalizing their names by carving initials into stone walls, are today on the Board of Directors, governing the institution. A large number of the ministers of our churches, teachers of our public schools, leaders in business and municipal affairs of our cities can class themselves with the Alumni. There is no man who counts his wealth by oil derricks, but still the Alumnus who does not open his heart, his home, and his means at the call of the Field Secretary is a rare exception.

Came the dire need of an auditorium-gymnasium with no relief in sight. The Alumni Association took it up and fourteen years ago subscribed the first dollar and constructed a building which has these nine years been used by a younger generation which perhaps is not aware of the struggle ensuing even now that the building debt might be paid.

Do you wonder that there is power, and influence, and prestige when each alumnus beats his own path out into the world, but never breaks his line of communication? Do you wonder that ideals and standards are built and upheld with a concentrated body? the essence of loyalty?

Heart Extract

"The One Big Thing About Bethel"

"I love my Alma Mater for giving me a chance for intellectual and spiritual growth in an atmosphere of reverence, open-mindedness, and loving tolerance."

Helene Riesen, Class of C., '17

"I love Bethel College because it was through her that I became acquainted with the foremost educational and religious leaders of the Mennonite Church, through her that I became proud of being a Mennonite, and through her that I became better qualified to serve God and humanity."

J. E. Linscheid, Class of C., '14.

"The outstanding feature in Bethel College which has left its deep imprint upon my life was the genuine faith of the professors in that blessed old book, the Bible. They believed it, taught it, and backed it up with their lives."

J. B. Frey, Class of A., '03.

"Coming to this country, a mere lad, away from the influence of father and mother, a lonely boy in a foreign country, Bethel took me in and made me feel so much at home within her walls that time and again, in these years, when asked, 'Where is your home?' I would answer as a matter of course, 'At Bethel College.' Bethel has inspired me with a desire to serve my Lord wherever He can use me."

H. Riesen, Class of A., '01.

"Though my interests have been temporarily shifted I think that Bethel will always find the warmest spot in my heart. I feel certain that those three years of intimate acquaintance with Bethel life have made an indelible imprint, and I cherish with tender feelings the memory of the friendly associations and good fellowship enjoyed while there."

Alfred G. Linscheid, Class of A., '16.

"I recall particularly the fraternal spirit among the students of Bethel College, and the spiritual atmosphere that pervaded the whole institution."

P. A. Penner, Class of A., '97.

"What I like best about Bethel is its religious and moral atmosphere."

Helen Isaac Moyer, Class of C., '15.

"Mathematics, science, history,—these I could have obtained e'sewhere, but the friends I would not have found there. I would have found other friends, but I am working in the Mennonite Church, and the friends among Mennonite circles mean most to me."

J. M. Regier, Class of C., '12.

"The one thing which I liked best about my Alma Mater was the religious spirit which prevailed. This was especially true of the chapel exercises for they were constructive, helpful, and inspiring."

Irma Haury, Class of C., '18

"The one thing about Bethel College which in my mind stands out most clearly above all other reminiscences is the whole-souled family spirit, permeated with Christian fellowship."

A. D. Schmutz, Class of A., '07.

"My faith in Bethel College is growing every day because Bethel itself is growing."

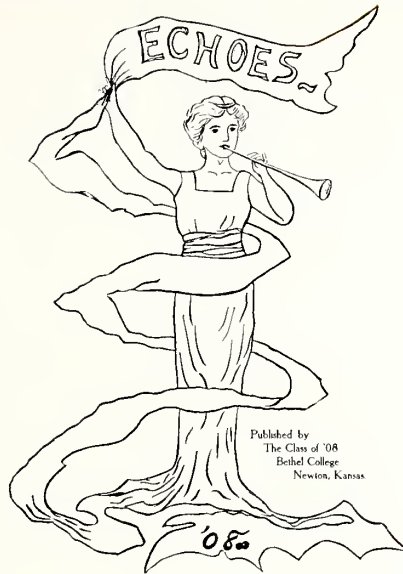

G. A. Haury, Jr., Class of C., '19.

"The congenial companionship of the student body, and the kindly forbearance of the Faculty with us 'raw recruits' are indelible memories of those early Bethel days."

J. P. Isaac, Class of A., '95.

"My mind surely falls back with divine pleasure to the happy and busy days at Bethel College. . . . Everything was new and great to me, and I enjoyed very much the work as well as the social life. The Lord surely helped a great many students to become true and faithful Christians and servants in His church."

Franz Albrecht, Class of A., '86.

Bethel's First Annual

Professor J. H. Doell
(Business Manager Echoes '08)

Fifteen years have served to show much progress at Bethel College. As we look back now, those of us who were in charge of publishing the first annual, the two things which stand out in prominent relief are opposition and lack of organization.

Innovations always meet with difficulties, and so the first annual, Echoes, Volume I, '08, seemed to draw all the fire of opposition that an otherwise quiet household might well shower upon an evil intruder.

There were few organizations at that time. The "Office" would organize a graduating class every year, but the rest of the students never were classified, though the Junior Class might effect such an organization after the innovation by the Class of '08 which simply meant a next year's graduating class of Junior College, Academy, and Commercial Department students.

There were no Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.; no inter-collegiate athletics, debate, nor oratory; no Student Volunteer Band; no reading contests. We had a sort of domestic Men's Glee Club, but no Ladies' Glee Club; no Student Paper, nor any Students' Activity Council. However, we did have two literary societies. Consequently both the financial aid and literary subject matter for the first annual were exceedingly scarce.

Another difficulty was met in the securing of representative pictures of Faculty and scenes about the campus. For instance, the only existing picture of Professor C. H. Wedel from his college days at Bethel is the one he had taken for the first annual, and that only after many protests.

When, finally, all cuts were ready and the editors had the text polished, the rather meagre and poorly gotten up work suffered its most severe setback at the hands of the printer who found the job "too big" for his inexperienced help. However, there was no time left for any changes, for the first copies came off the press on the night before commencement.

The first annual had eighty-one pages, and sixty-two illustrations. It cost about $200 and sold for seventy-five cents, but after school had closed that spring the management for the annual had about two dozen books on its hands, to say nothing of what seemed an enormous debt of $17.00.

Such were the trials and tribulations of those early pioneers who blazed the way, who broke the ice, who laid the foundations for this volume, Number IX.

The Annual Corporation Meeting

At least once every year the members of the Bethel College corporation assemble in conference,—The Annual Meeting,—for the purpose of discussing things pertaining to the welfare of this institution. While much of the business which takes place is of a routine nature, there are frequently things which have more particular value, and which arouse more than the usual interest, not only to members of the corporation, but also to all friends of the school.

So too this year. On December 1st, 1922, a large number of friends were brought together in this way. There were the usual reports and elections, (the results of the latter can be found on page sixteen of this volume), with the usual discussions following each. When all the business had been transacted, it was suggested that before the meeting disperse the old pioneers who in their day had acted as members of the Board of Directors tell of their experiences. These old men,—Reverend Gustav Harder, Reverend Heinrich Banman, Reverend Jacob W. Penner, and Reverend Abraham Ratzlaff,—complied, and in the half hour which followed so much was said that with the permission of these men their addresses (with the exception of one, which it was not possible to procure) have been translated, and are given below. It may be said that those addresses, short though they may have been, created an atmosphere which is felt with every passing day as students come and go at school here. Moreover, they closed in a most harmonious fashion a most profitable meeting, which, it is hoped, may be the precursor of many prosperous years to follow.

Reverend Abraham Ratzlaff

I am requested, as a former member of the Bethel College Board of Directors, to give some reminiscences of our experiences for the benefit of the Annual Meeting. Really it seems to me that what the brethren have said is sufficient, and I fully endorse all that they have told you.

But since it is the earnest wish that I too should say something, I want to state that Bethel, our Bethel, has always been an object of faith, and as such we have regarded it and cherished it.

How gladly I used to attend the Board meetings! I hardly ever absented myself. I felt I had to be present, not that the meetings couldn't be carried on without me, not because my counsel was needed, no, not that! But I realized, on the one hand, that it was my duty to be present; on the other, I felt imperceptibly drawn to the meetings; for there prevailed a spirit of harmony, love, and good fellowship among the members of the Board. True, we were confronted with many a difficult problem, but we laid them at the loving heart of our Heavenly Father who helped us find a way out of all difficulties. And, because of that intimate comradeship among the directors, I was loath to miss a meeting; for, to attend meant a real gain to me, to be absent, a positive loss.

To be sure there were moments when our hearts were inclined to grow faint or become discouraged. Once, in a meeting that followed closely upon a session of our Conference, a feeling of considerable discouragement threatened to lay hold upon our dear President, Brother J. J. Krehbiel, when he said, "I fear our school does not accomplish what we wished and planned that it should." When asked how he came to feel that way, he replied, "Well, I thought our young men who have studied in our school and have graduated from it should be heard from in our Conference deliberations, but they sit still and appear to have little concern for what is going on. I feel we are not accomplishing our purpose." We reassured him. "But, Brother Krehbiel, is not that merely a sign of modesty, and isn't that a valuable asset in the character of young men?"

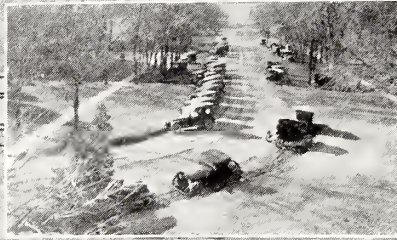

These young brethren of that day are now the workers and leaders in our churches, in our conferences, in our home and foreign mission work, in our district and preparatory schools, and in our Sunday schools.

If there are those who feel disposed to urge that our school, which has hitherto been under the control of a corporation, be made a conference school, because matters seem to be progressing too slowly for them, let them remember that we are the same people, those that belong to the corporation and those that belong to the conference. Let us be patient! Let us continue to work together in the spirit of love and trust in God, and it will all come out well!

Reverend Jacob W. Penner

Dear Friends:

It is somewhat of a surprise for one of my imperfections to be asked to speak of the important school events of long ago. One of the many affairs is still fresh in my memory. While this college was still struggling for existence in Halstead, a very important directors' meeting took place, the date of which I am unable to quote exactly. The case in question was a talented and capable professor who had come some distance to serve us only a year ago. For certain reasons he was to be dismissed. Kind friends, those were troubled days, that could not have been cleared without the aid of God. It took much sober thought to come to a decision in the matter, but the decision was finally made. In what way should we communicate this step to the professor? To employ the mail service seemed rather indelicate as he lived in the immediate vicinity. No one desired the task of handing this learned man his notice of dismissal; yet it had to be done. So Brother Gaeddert, H. Richert, and your humble servant were sought out. It was after dark that we went to the professor's home, where we received a friendly welcome. Brother Gaeddert handed him the writing which he laid aside for the time being, little thinking what the envelope contained, and the time passed in pleasant conversation. Soon we took our departure, and thus ended a visit that was to be followed by considerable unrest. Kind friends, this is only one of the many responsibilities that attend the upkeep and continuance of a school like ours. And where are now all the dear brethren that were gathered there then? As I look around me I feel I am the oldest one here today. They have gone home to the reward of the blest. So let us live that we may some day join them. It was for this purpose that Bethel College was called into being, and is maintained today: that we, as the redeemed shall strive for that home on high.

Reverend Gustav Harder

Dear Brethren:

If you request me to say something here of the experiences of the past regarding Bethel College, I would like to begin with a word of the psalmist as we find it in Psalm 77:5: "I have considered the days of old, the years of ancient times," and further in 12, 13, and 14, "I will remember the works of the Lord, surely I will remember thy wonders of old. I will meditate also of all thy work, and talk of thy doings. Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary." Oh, how have we, too, been permitted to see the wonderful and merciful help of our God from the very start. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits. Today we regard it as a very special blessing that the Lord our God led us into this country, and that from Russia, from South Germany and from West Prussia we are gathered here in conference. A further blessing it was that God gave us leaders, men who were earnest builders of His Kingdom. They recognized the fact that for this great work we must first of all have a Christian Mennonite school and training institute. It was for this cause that those dear brethren brought many a sacrifice at that time. If I presume to say, in grateful retrospect, that I, too, was among this number from the earliest days, I must let you know that I was the most unworthy among the directors, and acting only as a substitute for Brother S. F. Sprunger of Berne, Indiana. Before me and beside me stood those noble brethren whose names have ever been inseparably associated with Bethel. I need not designate them; we all know them. Most of them have been called by the Lord to their last reward. They are at home, in the home of the soul. Their house is a throne, of which death cannot rob them.

"I consider the days of old, the years of ancient times." We remember the faithful teachers who have done such blessed work here. "God, thy way is holy." We had much opportunity to cast our eyes upward, "from whence cometh our help." We had many faithful supporters and school friends in the organization. Again and again we experienced that God "stands by." Who can deny that He has helped us through to the end! Who will not agree with me that in many a dark hour He was found the only solace! Never has He turned from us.

After twenty-five years we could set Him an Eben-ezer; thus far hath God helped us. Now let us consider briefly the blessings that have gone forth from this. O, how much cause for real thankfulness! Almost all our missionaries both at home and in the foreign field have come from here. In the church work, the Sunday-school, and the Christian Endeavor, we have richly felt the overflow of blessing. Yes, truly, we can say: "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

And now a look into the future. The experiences of the past strengthen us regarding the future. We take comfort in this: "The cause is thine, Lord Jesus Christ, the cause for which we stand."

And now may the Lord Jesus who is the same yesterday and today and forever grant that the structure of Bethel College be built ever stronger on the foundation of which He is the corner stone. God bless the Faculty, the student body, and the Board of Directors.

The Special Bible Week

Not all lessons are learned in the school room; not all are learned in actual life, where man meets nature to make his living. Some lessons are learned as we mingle with one another for no other purpose than to think together.

The Annual Special Bible Week is an institution which was established for this very purpose, that men may think together, and to think through the problems which confront them as they read and study. With every passing year it is more fully meeting the expectation of the class of people for whom it was established. With every passing year, the lectures which are presented in this short week are made more practical, the program more diversified, and the problems and solutions more definite.

The 1923 Special Bible Week held February 4th to 11th was a revelation for compactness and variety. There were thirty-seven addresses, given by men who were thoroughly trained in their peculiar lines of study. Among others there were three lectures concerning Mennonite History, by Doctor C. Henry Smith, five inspirational lectures by Rev. W. A. Elliott of Ottawa, Kansas, five addresses about Biblical Literature by Professors G. A. Haury, and J. R. Thierstein, four scientific discussions by Professor D. H. Richert and Professor P. J. Wedel, in addition to illuminating discourses on Bible study by other members of the Faculty of the school.

The fact that this institution meets with universal approval was evidenced by the fact that the attendance increased from day to day, and by the many remarks which were overheard concerning the remarkable influence such meetings aroused. This week is primarily meant for the friends of this institution, and it shall continue so.

Founders' Day

Thirty-four years!

It was late evening,—the evening of Founders' Day. The moon had risen late, and was now looping far over toward the east. The life of the day had quieted down on the campus, and but a single student lingered as he walked homeward toward Goerz Hall.

"Thirty-four years!" It seemed the words did charm him, and the overhanging branches of the trees seemed to return in whispering accents, "Yes, thirty-four years."

He stopped. He looked upward, and then backward. There, bathed in silvery moonlight stood his own dear school,—Bethel College,—and as he looked, he saw more than just the white stones, but all around it the traditions of those thirty-four years. Was it just imagination, or could he actually see written in those walls the story of the brave men and women who had had the courage to start a work so great, so fraught with danger,—could he actually see the sacrifice which the fathers and mothers had made that he and others like him could be there that day?

And then he thought of the words of the speaker that afternoon, as addressing the group which had assembled on Goerz' Lawn, he had spoken of Faith, Hope, Love, Courage, Perseverance, Sacrificing Service, and Humble Contentment, which had characterized these early pioneers.

There came the suggestion, too, of students who had worked here, and who had left the school for other fields,—who had labored hard, and who had borne much, and who had done so much to uphold the hands of those who were to direct the affairs of the school. So he stood there alone in the evening light, and although no one saw, though no one heard, he bowed his head and there sped to Heaven a quiet, a deep rooted, a fervent prayer, "Oh, Father, it is Thy work. It is Thy school. Keep it for Thine own. May no clouds settle upon its horizon. May no sun ever set upon its prosperity. Amen."

The Larger Campus

And How It Came To Be

For almost thirty years the campus reserve consisted of a rectangular plot of ground covering ten acres. Today it consists of an L-shaped plot of ground of thirty acres. This enlargement is the result of planning for the growth of Bethel College, but was hastened through improvements which have been made.

The addition of Goerz Estate to the southeast of the old campus reserve joined the ground upon which the Leisy Home stands to the campus proper. The need of an athletic field suggested an enlargement to the north. Hence the purchase of the Goerz Estate made possible the combination as it now exists.

The Goerz Estate was purchased for two reasons. First, more room was needed, and second there was so much of the history of Bethel College wrapped up with the home of Reverend David Goerz that it would have seemed wrong not to have it as a part of the campus proper. Members of the Reverend David Goerz family, including his widow, who is now living in California, her sons and daughters, and her brothers and sisters, made special gifts which made possible the buying of this estate. It is a valuable addition to the campus, both from the standpoint of the needs which it meets, and the spirit of gratitude and reverence which it fosters.

Another change on the campus which brought us one step nearer the fulfillment of the larger program was the moving of the old Minnesota Home from the west end of the campus to a place immediately north of the Main Building, and of converting a portion of it into a much needed Music Hall. The present Music Hall provides for two studios, a large class room, and eleven practise rooms, in addition to affording dormitory room for half as many students as the former Minnesota Home did.

The moving of this building was an event of unusual importance in the history of Bethel College. It was made possible in part through special gifts on the part of friends of the institution, but no less so through the very enthusiastic and efficient cooperation of the student body and members of the Faculty who worked with their heads and their hands in removing brick from several old chimneys in the Main Building. This facilitated the construction of the Music Hall, and the making of improvements in the Main Building.

The Campus Beautiful

How it really all came about, no one, it seems, just exactly knows. This much, however, is known, that above the quiet, whispering of the autumnal winds was heard a most plaintive, a most distressing cry for "Help!" Evidently someone was stranded.

And so from mouth to mouth leaped the cry, "To arms! To arms!" The hero on that memorable day was none other than our dear Professor J. (Honorable) Doell, who, almost on the spur of the moment mustered his forces. Within a few moments valiant men, and brave ladies were leaving their workshops, their books, their studies,—left all, to go and save that which was going to ruin. They put on their armors of blue, they girded their loins with thongs, they put on their helmets of straw and so sallied forth,—noble three hundred. How their weapons glittered in the dazzling sunlight,—their shining hoes, their sparkling rakes, their shovels, axes, and their spades.

So will men move as in a single body when threatened by a common foe. The noble three hundred, under the wise and valiant leadership of Captain Doell, dashed upon the crafty enemies in hasty and hot pursuit, who under the command of General Weed and Captain Trash, most notably assisted by the far famed General Annoyance, had entrenched themselves on the banks of the river Kidron, or had hidden themselves in the high ambush. So furiously did Captain Doell and his brave three hundred struggle, that when evening came, not one was left of the once haughty army of General Weed. Many prisoners had been taken of the army of General Annoyance and Captain Trash, who were most ruthlessly burned at the stake before sundown.

So evening came, and with it came the reports that the enemy had been most effectually routed, and that their land had been conquered. Peace was declared that night, and a great feast was proclaimed at the Dining Hall, where all, in single file, assembled to do honor to the victors. When all men had partaken of that which was laid upon the table, Captain Doell once more raised up his voice, and proclaimed the prize to the most faithful regiment, under the command of General Academy Junior,—a most appetizing and extravagant cake.

No sooner had the feast been finished, than the bugler called together the victorious army to the gymnasium. There the valiant warriors of the day, and the blushing maidens of the hearth, frolicked and sported in games and contests, until at last a message was heard, above the din of the evening and the spirits of the group, that night was come at last. "Disperse," it read, "and sweet be thy dreams until the dawn."

The Museum

Tucked away, and seemingly almost forgotten in a basement room of the college building, is Bethel's museum. So much out of sight, so off the beaten path is it, that one sometimes wonders just how many of the students even know that it is there.

The mellow light, which fell in from those two corner windows, cast a fittingly sombre hue over the room. For there, neglected and discarded, I uncovered a wealth of historic material in which any lover of the antique would revel.

Statuary, models and various types of sculpturing hang resignedly on the walls, rest indiscriminately on showcases, cabinets and tables—all they seem to ask is a place to hide their shame—shame at being stuck away in such a place, out of sight and little cared for. Here, apparently despised and unworthy, is gathered all that in years past graced a thriving and quite promising art gallery. For, as some of us happen to know, Bethel in earlier years felt quite proud of her art department. But today—no room—everything relegated to this quiet abode of the forgotten.

One may almost ask, what isn't to be found in this one large dusky room. Biological collections are prominent. One sees queer bones, horned skulls, and ostrich eggs; starfish, corals, and bottled tarantulas—almost anything that one may be searching for. A case of butterflies furnishes a riot of color. There they are, blue ones, black ones, yellow, orange, mottled, striped, and speckled—just as you like them—every color, size, shape, and variety.

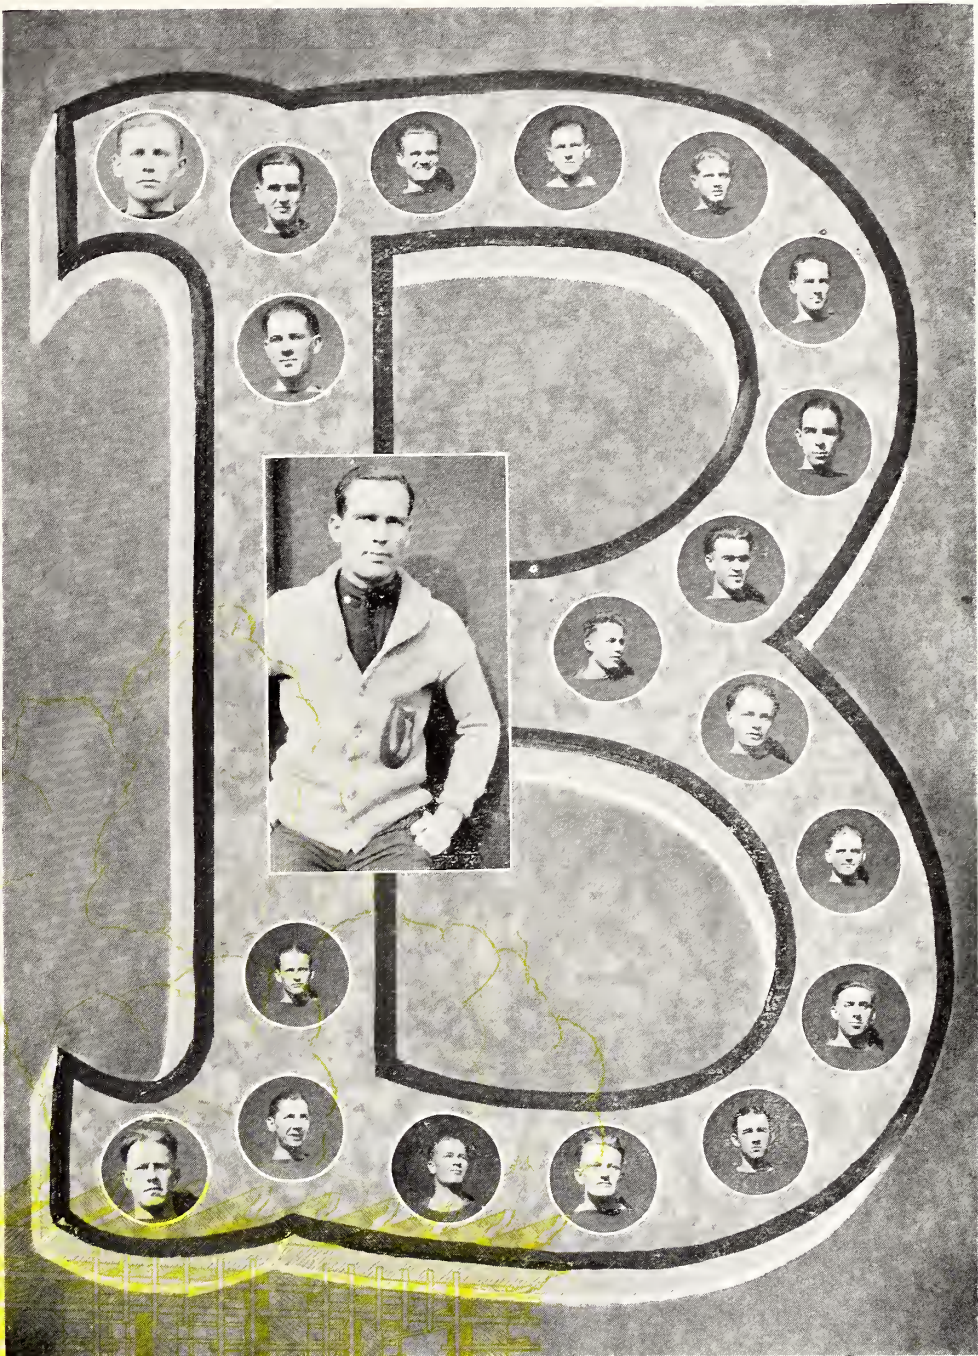

The cases of rock and mineral samples are loaded. Familiar old quartz is there. One sees agates, silicons, feldspars, granites, micas, flints, limonites and conglomerate. One odd shaped sandstone is marked "water-worn"; another, still more fantastic in form, is labeled "wind-worn." Beautiful crystalline formations greet one throughout. One coral-like rock has such a set of spires and pinnacles that one is inclined to call it cathedral rock.

The many pictures—photos of literary societies, classes, and glee clubs—all adorn the showcases, and thus effectually shut off the view to the articles of genuine interest within. It almost reminds one of a morgue. Why should these photos, together with good old George Washington, stand in sorrowful array in scenes such as these?

There too is a spinning wheel, an oriental vase, and an oriental tray with a curiously fashioned handle; a tiny model of a primitive plow; a brass vase and a plate of brass; battle axes, big knives, swords and steel tipped arrows, which, by the way, bear the following label: "Handle with care! The edges of the steel blades are dipped in poison."

And too, one wonders what sort of an individual wore those curious old bracelets. Even Indian relics. Several bows, a bunch of arrows and some moccasins; also a large cabinet of Indian curios. Oh that old museum is surely a place to go and allow one's imagination to be turned loose. Anything, everything, everywhere.

The fading light of that autumn day had nearly left the room in darkness before I went away. But I knew that I left to return again. For that dusty old corner basement room, which today contains articles that some time will grace some spacious hall, has things which may even today well claim the attention of any student.

MUSINGS OF A STATISTICIAN

The Class of 1925, realizing that "air castles materialize only when strong foundations are built under them" have come to Bethel to get the plans for the foundations of life.

The class is known to be a studious one, especially about the time of examinations. That there must be some sorrow in school work, such as examinations, cannot be denied, nor does anyone try to deny that, for one cannot drown sorrow,—it has been in the swim too long. However, the class is optimistic about examinations.

It is the firm conviction of this class that a good sponsor is of inestimable value to any class. As Freshmen we elected Doctor Langenwaller; as Sophomores we chose Coach Haury. Just to show what kind of a man Coach is we shall quote the motto which he gave to his football men.

"Work hard.

Be on time to practise every day.

Train faithfully.

Get your lessons.

Aim to do your part to make yourself a part of the machine.

Be a gentleman.

If this combination is too much for you turn in your suit and call around during the croquet season."

The Class is well represented in all activities of the school. The class was even told by one of the Faculty that they ought to be well on the road to good, common sense from the year's experience as Freshmen. At the same time the remark was made that the Juniors and Seniors really did not amount to very much, since they were so few in numbers. The Freshman had not been known to have shown any great signs of brains. Consequently, the only class which amounted to anything worthy of mention was the Sophomore Class. A modest group like the Class of 1925 would have thought nothing of a remark like this, had it not come from one so learned.

Two members of the class, more curious than the rest, delved into the first semester's records. This is what they found. This notorious class has furnished the captain for the football team besides three other players of the team. It has fifteen members in the Alpha Beta Literary Society, thirteen members in the Delphian Literary Society, although both organizations limit themselves to forty members. Several members of the class are on the first squad in basketball, one of them being the captain. Four of their number have worked themselves into the limelight as members of the Collegian staff, two of them as members of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet, five of them members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. That worthy organization known as the Student Volunteer Band has captured seven of our number. Three members of a class of thirty-three are on the staff of the Bethel Monthly, while six are members of the annual staff. The class is represented by three men in the Letter Club, of whom one is the president of that club. Ten places in the ranks of the Men's and Ladies' Glee Clubs have been taken by Sophomores, and two places in the College Band and Orchestra.

Best of all, the class does not follow the line of least resistance,—that's what makes rivers and men crooked,—but we always do our best, in whatever direction that may lead us.

has more than its face value.

"Four years in business"

The Class of 1923

Bethel Academy

NEWTON, KANSAS

Day of Graduation.

Mr. Round World,
Somewhere in Space.
My dear Mr. World:

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for me to seek a new field of action for my various and most excellent talents, having worn out my welcome here in the Bethel Academy, I herewith make application for whatever position your honor may see fit.

My qualifications are as numerous as the positions demanding them. To show you that I can offer you the best of services may I ask you to center your thoughts for some moments on my most fitting and laudable motto: "Not for school, but life, I learn."

It is because of this motto that I have studied many things which were foreign to my natural inclinations. For one thing, I have learned to write compositions and papers on subjects of the past, present, and future. For references along this line of qualifications I would refer you to Miss Mary Hooley, now at Bethel College, to whom has fallen much of the labor of teaching me that punctuation marks, such as periods, commas, and quotation marks, are not to be hurled at one's paper promiscuously, and that a collection of words does not necessarily convey a thought. I've studied through the question of "Taxation without representation" by way of Burke's speech on conciliation, and have acquainted myself with other men who have had the art of saying things on paper.

That my reasoning powers have been properly developed you will readily see when I assure you that I have learned to reason that "Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other," and that "Parallel lines do not meet, however far they may be extended." I've learned, also, to let x represent the unknown quantity. Strange to say, I have sometimes found the same mark on an examination paper evidently, here too, denoting the unknown.

I have an ear for music, and can fill a whole orchestra settee as follows: pianist, violinist, cornetist, trombonist, clarinetist, and have even made myself useful with the bass horn, and the bass drum. Most of the above may seem rather noisy qualifications with the exception of the first two, but I am also very much interested in the College Glee Club, even to the extent of having found a low place on the College Quartet.

My scientific qualifications may be of particular interest to you. I have been exposed to physiology, general science, physics, and am quite confident that they have left at least a slight impression. Perhaps my pedagogical studies can also be classed under science.

Knowing perfectly well that a concept is more easily formed visually than otherwise, instead of telling you of many personal characteristics I attach a series of photographs showing me in my various attitudes.

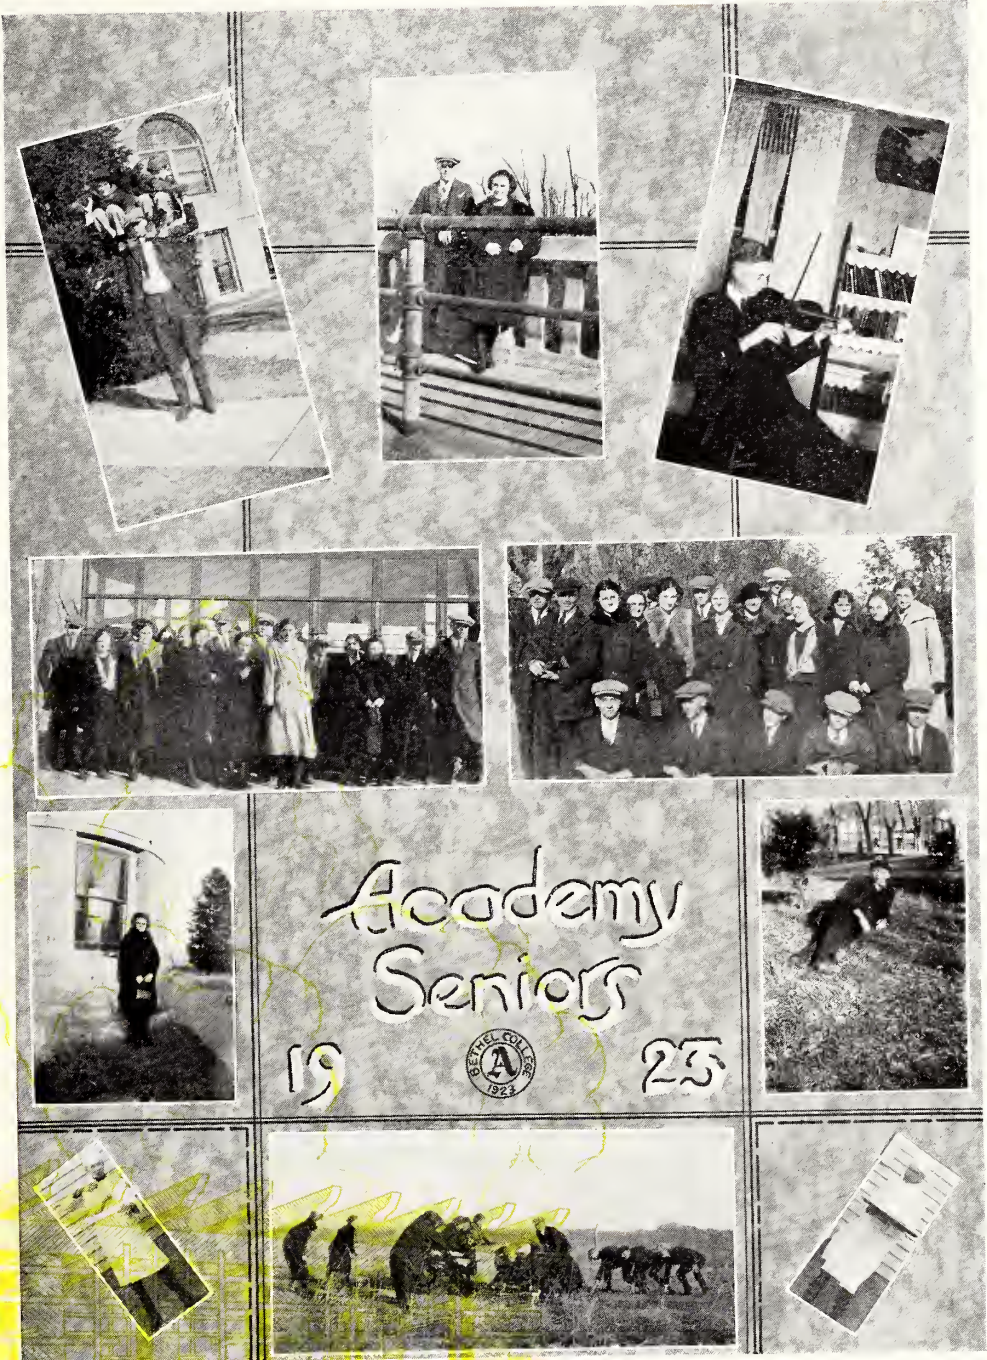

My social side has not lacked attention during my four years at school; we have learned long since that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Socials, hikes, picnics, banquets, and the like, which Your Honor knows perfectly well form a small but indispensable part of school life, have not been lacking.

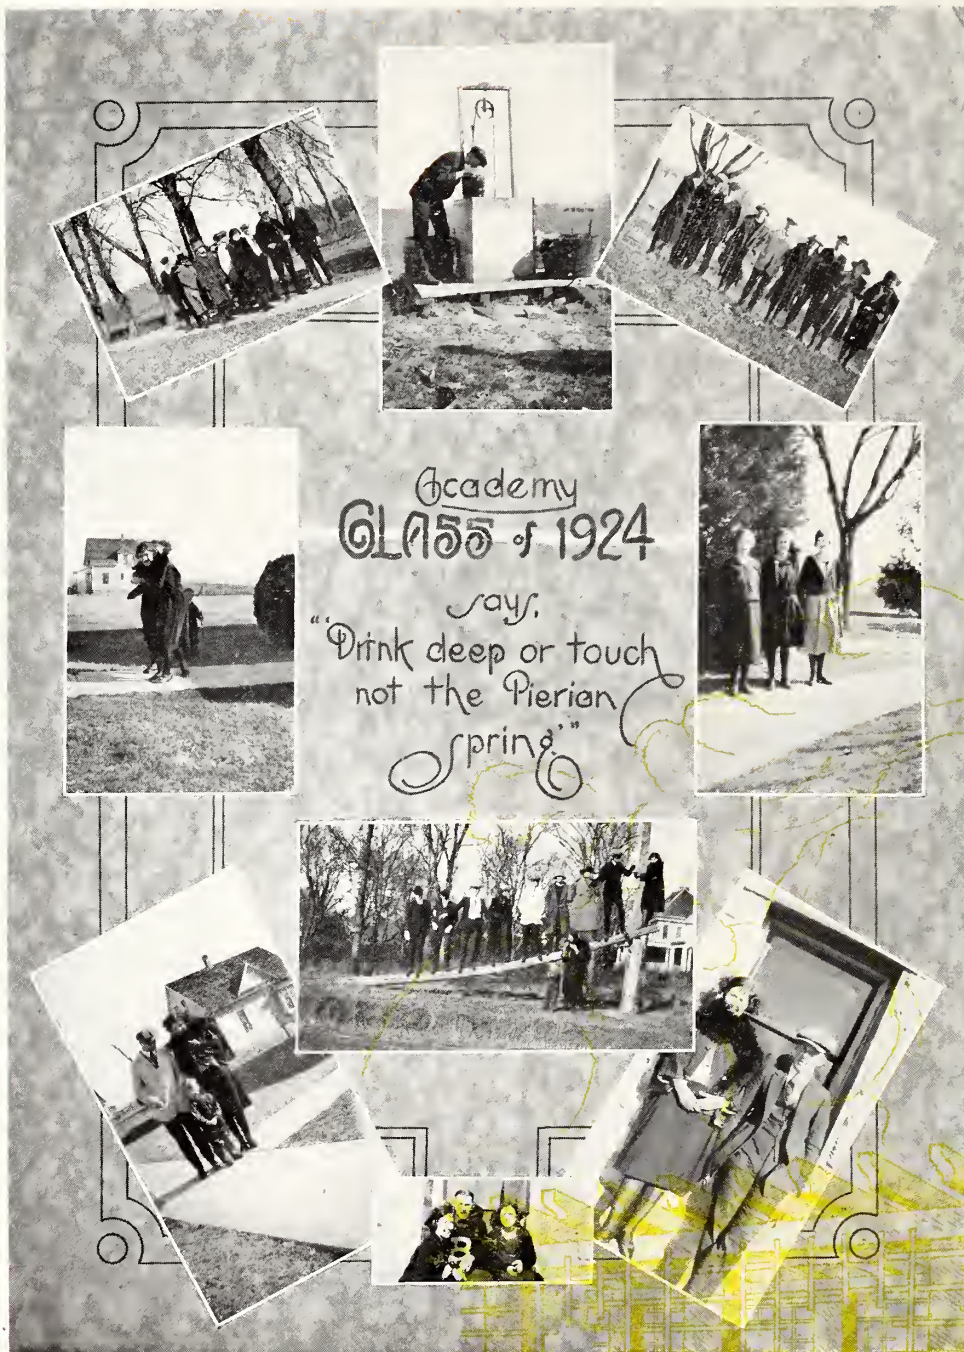

May I refer you to all the good instructors who have spent so many valuable hours and so much patience in assisting me to this state of efficiency, and whose daily life has been such a constant challenge to better and nobler living.

Can you use me? I am thoroughly confident of my training, Mr. World, and if I can be of any service to you, I assure you that nothing shall be too small in my estimation, if in yours it shall be for the service of those in whose presence I am to spend my life.

Respectfully yours,

The Class of 1923.

The Fall Mixer

The Backward Social

Our annual Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. fall social is becoming an important factor in creating a lively and unified school spirit at the beginning of each school year. Old and new students, faculty members, and nearby alumnae and ex-students, all experience a thrill of anticipation when sometime in the first week of school comes the announcement of the "Y Mixer."

The 1922 Fall Social was especially unique. Its announcement proved to be a real Chinese puzzle.

"emoc ot eht sdawkcab ytrap ni eht muisanmyg no taS ,tpeS, 61, ta 8 M. P."

In this manner all, but especially the "Freshmen" were forewarned that they were to be given a chance to wear out their last coats of backwardness. When the eventful evening arrived, most of the pleasure seekers felt prepared for the unusual. Surprise came, however, when at the front door all passageway was blocked by a large plank on which was scribbled, "Back door. Bridge out." Greater still was the astonishment at the fact that the refreshments were served before they had scarcely come to the realization that they had all assembled. This reversal of established customs was no doubt acceptable to some whose enjoyment of the evening was greatly enhanced, once their hunger was fully appeased.

Another feature of the entertainment, the character analysis blanks (a facsimile of which is shown above) proved to be entirely fascinating and a great help in the otherwise difficult task of getting acquainted. There followed backward contests of all kinds, games, stunts, races, yells, and finally the evening's entertainment was closed with the animated singing of our Alma Mater.

In suchwise do folks get acquainted. When the last strains of the Alma Mater died away whatever backwardness there might have been a few hours before had vanished in the melting pot of friendships. All, the new as well as the old, had become full fledged Bethelites.

Who Am I?

I may well be compared to a ten-cent store in a large city. In such an establishment people of all classes flock together, purchase what they may need, and then submerge into the great human current in the street. Likewise, students crowd about me, look at everything, pick what appeals to them, and disperse wherever their work calls them.

From morning till night I must bear these glances, some piercing, others staring, some kindly, loving, buoyant, hopeful, others sour, spiteful, dull, discouraged. Why? Well, I am the newsboy of the campus. To the sweet maidens I announce the next glee club practice. To the youth I suggest that he may again utilize his melodious voice. To the athlete I bring the most welcome news—a game tonight. A smile of thanks, and away he bounds to the gym. Here comes a member of the most esteemed and worthy faculty. I have something for him, too, and put out my card, "Call No. 604, immediately, (if not sooner)." In return he gives me his, "There will be no Latin till next week." Or here comes a tired, sad-eyed, tear-stained face. How the little card makes the face brighten; how the little face beams with joy as she trips out to joyous freedom!

Again, I am a medium,—I announce articles lost, strayed, (by chance, as it sometimes happens), or stolen. All come to me for help,—few go away disappointed. I carry practically all news save wedding announcements. I am at your service.

Graymaroon

The Intrinsic Value of Our Graymaroon

An Oration Delivered by Miss Selma Rich
on the eve of The Graymaroon Sales Campaign

What is more delightful than an hour spent in leisurely leafing through a college annual? There is something fascinating in the pictures of gay students and dignified professors, in the amusing snapshots, in the clever cartoons and in the prose and poems of lofty praise. Each page has its revelations of that intangible something which we call a college spirit. It is the breath of youthful activity, sincerity, and originality which attracts the attention of even the casual reader.

But how much more does the college annual mean to the reader for whom each page calls forth a myriad of associations! How much more does our Graymaroon mean to Bethel friends, Bethel Alumni, and to us, as Bethel Students!

First, what does our Graymaroon mean to our dearest friends—to fathers and mothers? It gives them a glimpse of life at Bethel. For them it will have a great significance, because they are especially interested in us. How their hearts swell with pride and joy as their glance lights upon that picture of their own stalwart John! And, then each word, each picture is colored by thoughts of John. Our Graymaroon is, indeed, treasured by those who love us.

But now let us place our Graymaroon into the hands of an alumnus. How interesting to note his changing expressions as the train of memories rushes into his consciousness! At the first glance into the new volume his head droops and a tear drops upon the page as he sighs, "Ah, this is not my old college. This cannot be my old Bethel." Ah, dear alumnus, your countenance will soon brighten. As you continue to turn the pages of our Graymaroon you will soon say, "This IS my old Bethel. She has only put on a new garment. Upon every step and stone are written growth and progress. But yet her old foundation is ever solid. Bethel College is still true to the purposes for which she was founded. Now I know for a certainty that she has not 'lost her first love'!"

Last, what is the value of our Graymaroon for us, its makers? Our Graymaroon is a photograph of our life at Bethel; therefore, it is a part of us. Moreover, we shall find it growing dearer as the years roll by. It will ever and again bring back that pulse of enthusiasm, which belongs to our college days. Someday our college days will seem a golden chain of events. And, as we turn the pages of our old Graymaroon our eyes will linger upon the faces of our dearest college chums and our most beloved professors. Then, we shall turn to the snapshots of that old bridge, upon which an important life question was brought to a decision, and then to the ancient pine, under which we reclined, when there dawned upon us a new vision of God's infinite beauty. So each page will touch the chords of our souls and bring forth music,—serious, solemn, and sweet.

Dear friends, our Graymaroon is the fossilized experience of another year at Bethel. It is the full formed flower of another season's growth; a flower whose deep roots have found rich nourishment in the soil of thirty-four years of cultivation. If not now, someday, we shall realize that our Graymaroon has an intrinsic value which is deep and abiding.

The Value of a College Annual

An Oration delivered by Mr. Emil W. Haury
on the eve of The Graymaroon Sales Campaign

No one wishes to be forgotten. This is a truth that holds with an institution as well as individuals. And since a gift of some kind helps to keep the pleasant recollections of school life in mind, it is natural that an institution should give to its students some little remembrance. So too, when an institution gives its students an annual, perhaps nothing could be more appropriate. Such an annual ever reminds its students of all kindnesses, all generosity bestowed upon them during their sojourn at school, and, in many cases, brings renewed appreciation for their Alma Mater.

The thought of our own institution comes to us,—our own Bethel College. It too has undertaken the publication of an annual, and it is important that when this book is presented to us that we should understand its value, and not pass lightly over a thing which in years to come may mean so much to us.

It is my purpose, in this appearance, to present to you a few reasons, which in my opinion, should warrant any student in purchasing a college annual.

What is its significance? What does this book mean to you now? In the future? In short, what is its value to you as students. A college annual is a means of promoting school spirit, and loyalty, because it is essentially a student enterprise. What Old Glory means to the heart of every true American, that the annual of a school and its activities means to the student. It is the outward sign of loyalty, to be the owner of such a book. Such a book materially fosters a school spirit which will, indeed, make students "feel responsible when their Alma Mater is discredited, and glad when she is honored."

No student, once this spirit is truly implanted in his thinking, once this loyalty is part of his whole life, will be detracted from the true aim and fundamental principles of his school. An annual, therefore, is one of many factors, small though it may be in some instances, which directly helps to keep a school moving in a positive direction. When the students of such a school pass out of its halls into sterner realities of life, the ideals which the annual fostered, the memories which it recalls, the scenes which it brings to mind,—these become very real indeed,—so real that neither time nor element will ever serve to erase them.

In the second place, therefore, it becomes valuable as a reminiscence. It is, verily, a history of one's college days,—glorious college days, and as such it becomes one's most cherished keepsake, a simple memento, emblematic of one's school days, and all school day associations. It's a story which will never grow old. What matter though you have picked it up and fingered through its pages half a dozen times today! Every page holds something intensely interesting and fascinating,—

The college annual is like a mirror. You see yourself as others see you. It reflects life at school, its joys and its sorrows,—its defeats and triumphs.

And what more shall I say about it? It is, withal, the golden promise which you have ever wished might be given you when in your best moments you have, from the depths of your heart, wished the wish, "Oh, that it might always be thus,—that I might never need to forget these days."

The Student Friendship Drive

Among the innocent sufferers of the World War in Europe were the eager students at the universities and colleges. An investigator for the World Student Christian Federation discovered early in 1920 that the schools of learning in the devastated regions of Europe, including Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany and Russia in particular, lacked sufficient funds to supply equipment and were unable to pay their professors while the students were in a far sadder plight. In fact, it was an incident of two students starving to death for want of the barest necessities in Vienna that aroused this worthy organization to undertake the great task of raising funds with which to aid the destitute students of Europe.

To support the above named organization in alleviating the conditions of our fellow students in Europe three American college student organizations combined their forces and launched last fall, the Student Friendship Fund Campaign. There were the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the Student Volunteer Band. Mr. Bernhard Bargen was selected by the local societies as General Campus Chairman for the campaign for Bethel College. He was given the opportunity to meet with the student representatives of all Kansas colleges, at Emporia, where information was disseminated, definite plans formulated, and speakers assigned for the drive week.

All the details of the local drive were thoroughly planned weeks before the campaign started, at Thanksgiving time. The work of solicitation was segregated among a group of willing workers who were provided with blank pledge cards, and lots of enthusiasm.

The campaign for the Student Friendship Fund was dramatically opened with a "memorial supper" at the Dining Hall on the evening of November 24th, 1922, when the activities of the day had subsided and everyone's mind was free for serious thought.

The group of two hundred students and professors found long rows of bare tables awaiting them, indicative of the sight which meets the struggling students of Europe probably but once a day at the most. The guests were served with thin beef soup and bread crusts; a very meagre meal, indeed, but bountiful compared to that received by many of the refugee students in Europe. A more impressive illustration of student conditions over there could hardly have been given.

Doctor J. H. Langenwalter, as chairman of the Memorial Supper, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. John Filinger of the College of Emporia. Mr. Filinger was a member of the party of forty students making a survey of existing conditions among the students in the universities and colleges of Europe during the summer of 1922 with a purpose of giving American students first hand information of their situation as well as promoting a closer fellowship between European and American students.

Mr. Filinger pictured vividly, the manner in which those students live; the dark, musty, vermin-infested quarters; the thin soups and hard crusts of black bread which they call food; the scarcity of books; the lack of equipment. And despite all this students there refused to give up the struggle for enlightenment,—Europe's only hope for practical reconstruction. Accentuated with a few keen remarks by Doctor Langenwalter, there followed a short period of absolute quiet before the guests departed.

On the following morning in Chapel, Mr. Filinger gave a detailed report of what he saw in Europe concerning those whom we were being asked to aid. Following his appeal pledge cards were distributed throughout the audience so that a personal expression might be elicited in response to this call for aid. The pledges and later collections amounted to $350.00, which Mr. Filinger said was sufficient to support an entire university for one year.

Hail, all Hail to Bethel College

Do you know we have in Newton,
In the sunny Sunflower State,
Situated mid elm and maple,
Wisdom's shrine for small and great?

Take the car line headed northward,
And ride out a mile or more,
There stands Bethel tall and stately,
Favored spot for learning's lore.

In her classic halls inspiring,
Stalwart youth and maiden fair,
Striving with intense devotion,
With the lessons given there.

Each one bent on preparation,
For the larger things of life,
Training mind and heart and spirit,
Eager for the toil and strife.

Minds develop, visions broaden,
Hearts aspire for learning's lore,
Soon the verdant bashful freshman,
Stalks thro' the Commencement door.

Bethel's atmosphere is sacred,
Made so 'cause the Book of Books,
Is wide open, studied daily,
Emphasized by word and works.

Zealous teachers, devout Christians,
Impart knowledge, give advice,
And inspire our student body,
Making life a sacrifice.

Here develop future leaders,
For the Church and for the State,
Newton's proud of Bethel College,
And will help to make her great.

Hail to Bethel and her future!
Blessing thousands, bringing cheers;
May a host of friends now rally,
May she live a thousand years.

Nothing spectacular developed in the field events; in fact a number of the records fell below par, though the contesting for place in the shot put between McPherson and Bethany waxed warm. The latter record was boosted from 36 feet, 9¾ inches, to 39 feet, 1 inch. Almost a foot was added to the pole vault, but in the broad jump, discus, and javelin the old marks were not reached.

Of Bethel's sprinters, Guy Spangler placed in the two short dashes while Reimer took a third in the mile and Terry a fourth in the two mile. Competition was rife in the pole vaulting yet Karl Kliewer tied for a third. Captain E. Schroeder drew a fourth in the discus.

Summary:

100 yd. Dash—Skilling, B. C.*, Center, B. C., Vaniman, M. C., Spangler, Bethel, (10 sec.); Broad Jump—Skilling, B. C., R. Brammel, M. C., I. Brammel, M. C., Center, B. Just Between You and Me

The Class in Zoology were studying the lobster. Said Dora (to one of the boys): "Let me have your notebook. I want to see your foot."

Chemistry class was discussing carbon monoxide gas.

Homer Jones: That gas would kill you, wouldn't it?

Professor Wedel: Yes, and it would kill others too.

RADIATOR COURSE

Prof. J. E. Linscheid (in Public Speaking): Did you notice anyone not looking at you?

Esther Kaufman: Yes, I looked at you three times, but you did not look at me.

Curt Friesen was carrying a tray to Albert Ratzlaff, who was sick.

Esther Mouttet: How is Albert getting along?

Curt: He's still confined to the "Y" room.

Reduced Rates on Weddings

General public $2.00, students $1.00, students who voted for me $.59. Special allowance to steady customers.

Prof. J. E. Linscheid,
Justice of the Peace.

Student: The German mark is falling.
Prof. Janzen: Which way?

Instructor: To spend the summer is called summering.

Student: Is to spend the fall called falling?

Prof. C. C. Janzen: Why do I ask you this question?

Clara Pankratz: Because you think I don't know the answer.

When the "dope" came in Mariam Penner (at the supper table): Have you got a date, Miller?

Miller: No, do you want one?

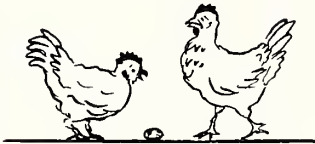

Gilbert Alcott, who is a member of the National Guard, went hunting one beautiful day. Up jumped a rabbit and in the heat of his excitement, Gilbert shouted: "Halt! Or I fire."

Al: Who is in the Y room?

Waldo: Seven cents.

Al: "Seven cents!" Whoozat?

Waldo: Two pennys and a nickel.
(Mariam, Hulda and Elizabeth Nickel.)

Hank Hege claims to have gathered eggs three times a day, for a week straight, but two times a day he didn't find any.

Elizabeth Richert: What did you have for Thanksgiving dinner?

Jakie Goering: Chicken in the shell, with pin feather dressing, and a rooster with the spur.

Homeward Bound and On Returning

Al was airing the fact that he never was to be found without money.

Waldo: Yeah, I know you never are out of change. You always have a nickel.

Charity worker: Will you please help the Working Girls' Home?
Sophomore: Shure, where are they?

The latest Dormitory lament is: "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'Be in at ten'."

Mr. Kesselring (to the basses in chorus): That's absolute carelessness. You sang awful. Do it again."

Professor Linscheid (in Public Speaking class): Have you done any breathing since last time?

Ferdinand Voth: As far as I know I have breathed all the time.

First student: Do your clothes get very dirty?

Second student: Do they! Goodness, it takes twice as much postage to send my laundry home as it does to bring it back.

Why the Dormitory Needs a Bellboy

Mary: Did you know that one of the Faculty members is engaged? He was engaged last night.

Elsie: Mercy on us! Who is it?

Mary: I'm not to tell, but he was engaged grading papers.

Instructor: Mention some other bird which belongs to the hen family.

Alvin Voth: The rooster.

Clara Pankratz claims it's "simply terrible." First we have to learn to read, and now we have to read to learn.

Special Courses to Be Offered Next Year

I. The Philosophy of Sleep. Three hours Both semesters

Instructor, Paul Latschar

This course deals with the facts of sleep in a scientific manner. Designed to meet the needs of Freshmen and Sophomores and others who are interested in a constructive analysis of the phenomena of sleep. Library work required. No notebook work.

II. Advanced Composition and Narration Two hours

First semester

Instructor, Adolf Krehbiel

Open only to Juniors and Seniors. A practical, intensive course which is intended to enable young men and women to tell of their last night's experiences. However, chief emphasis will be placed on their actual achievements.

III. Astronomy (?) hours Second semester

Instructor, Adolph Friesen

An extensive study of the effect of the moon on earthly beings, people, and other moving and stationary (mostly stationary) bodies. Class will be paired, two and two working together. There will be observation classes from time to time. Notebook work is advised, but not required.

IV. Advanced Public Speaking

Three hours

First semester

Instructor, Nettie Loganbill

A practical course, worth while for any college or academy girl, which enables her to scream naturally but effectually when she sees a mouse. Class will be conducted in sound proof room in the Music Hall.

V. 20th Century Poetry Two hours Both semesters

Instructor, Milton Schrag

An interpretative study of the greater poets of the 20th century, with particular emphasis on Clara Latschar, Rudolph Enns, Paul Kliever, Esther Kaufman, Anna Stoesz and David Ratzlaff. The study will be confined to the study of their works, their lives being touched upon only in the most necessary parts.

VI. Smile-ometry and Elementary Grin-ology Four hours

Both semesters

Instructor, Esther Kaufman

Ass't Instructor, Otilie Linscheid

Open to anyone afflicted with the blues. Course guaranteed to give satisfaction. A rather deep and philosophical study of the muscles of the face. A delightfully entertaining course.

Why I Am Thankful

That the nights are not as long here
as they are at the North Pole.

That it is cloudy, because the sun
hurts my eyes.

That I have just two eyes to bother me, and not a million like the fly.

That my ears are not as long as a donkey's, or they might hurt more extensively.

That my temperature is only 102½.
It might easily go to 103.

That I have just 206 bones to ache and pain me, and not an even 300.

That I do not have to oil my joints as
I must oil the arms of my typewriter.

That the dorm girls are not always as noisy as they are sometimes.

That from my window I could hear the band play at the basketball game.

That my throat is not as long as that of a giraffe or it would hurt more intensely.

That I can switch the light on with a string to see what time of the night it is.

That I don't have a mirror in my room to see how sick I look.

We Know

BETHEL has no Stadium, and
BETHEL has but one park, and BETHEL has no Auditorium, and BETHEL has no Science Hall, and BETHEL has no Swimming Pool, and BETHEL has no Memorial Hall, and BETHEL has no Aviation Field, and BETHEL has no Museum Building, and BETHEL has no Library Building, and BETHEL has not twenty-five dormitories, and
BETHEL has no million dollar endowment fund, and

BETHEL does not have a Faculty of one hundred, and
BETHEL has no enrolment of one thousand students, and
BETHEL cannot grant an A. M., nor a
Ph. D. degree, and

THAT'S TRUE

BUT—

BETHEL IS GROWING.

WATCH HER!

You Know Who He Is

He's always at work,
This man who won't shirk
The duties which face him each day.
He's up before dawn,
Who for years has gone
To his work without missing a day.
He pumps up the tires,
He stirs up the fires
Till the steam pipes begin to groan.
He'll shovel the snow,—
Then away he will go
Lest by chance his goodness be known.

You can't beat his smile
In many a mile,
Though you'd search the whole year
through.
He serves us so well,
We simply can't tell
What he's worth to me and to you.
He's worked a long time,
This hero of mine,
A mighty fine man is he.
You ask for the name
Of this man of fame,—
Why it's Groneman, who else could he be?

The 1923 Graymaroon

BETHEL COLLEGE
NEWTON, KANSAS

Dear Reader:

You have spent perhaps an hour or so in the perusal of this volume. You have taken it for granted,—this book,—never thinking of the spirit which brought it into existence.

Even so small a book as this is not the result of the thought and work of but a single person; even so small a book as this has not come into existence over night, but requires the thought and planning of many, many persons. Few, indeed, will be able to believe upon, first thought that this book which you have just fingered through, is the embodiment of the handiwork of over one hundred fifty people. Think of it, a moment! Think of the price of such an undertaking.

The staff, consequently, feels truly grateful to these people who rendered such valuable assistance. We feel deeply indebted to the Faculty Committee, which supervised the work of editing the book. We are thankful to the old pioneers who so kindly submitted their suggestions, which, though they do not appear in print in all cases, are yet reflected in the make-up of this volume. We are thankful to the many students who so cheerfully accepted what they considered their responsibilities in the publication of such a book.

And now to you, who are closing this book for a time, a word of appreciation also. Your faith in Bethel College is reflected in no small measure in the pages of this memorial. If, as you think of this book again your faith may somehow be strengthened in our own dear Bethel College, then our fondest hopes, have, indeed, been more than realized.

Very sincerely yours,

THE STAFF.

"Jahn & Ollier Again"

ACHIEVEMENT

The goal of every ambitious man and firm is typified in the rapid growth of the Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company—the universal esteem in which their art and plates are held by the large national advertisers—and the enviable reputation for prompt deliveries which they enjoy.

The mission of all advertising illustrations is to produce sales and the growth of this firm has been measured by the success its customers have had in obtaining new business thru using "J&O picture salesmen."

Thirty thousand square feet of floor space (4 floors) and over two hundred and fifty skilled employees are required to meet the constant demand for "J&O" commercial photographs, art, color process plates and photo engraving (one complete floor is devoted to color process work).

Intelligent supervision of all work by many skillful office service men eliminates your troubles. Sales service men sent everywhere.
